BIGGEST TASK STILL AHEAD, BYRNES WARNS

Allies Hold Initiative But Must Deal Vigorous Blows, FDR's Aide Asserts.

HINTS AT MAJOR MOVES

Observers Believe His Remarks Mean Air Assault Will Be Principal Weapon.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The nation and the world had from one of President Roosevelt's closest confidants today a pronouncement that the initiative in the global war, now held by the Allies, "is of no value unless followed vigorously with great forces."

Broadly implying the imminence of further grand scale operations against Nazi-held Europe James F. Byrnes stressed the success of aerial bombardment to date, but said the president had authorized him to say that "the major battles lie ahead of us, not behind us."

Some observers drew an inference from his talk that attack by air, rather than by sea and land forces against numerically superior odds, might continue to keynote offensive strategy, for the time being at least. There were indications the decision in this connection might be reached in the Roosevelt-Churchill parleys at Quebec.

Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization and sometimes referred to as assistant president, called for greater effort and sacrifice on the home front in order to press home the initiative already gained. In return, he promised a "substantial reduction" in the cost of living necessities and gave assurance of ultimate victory.

Byrnes' implied thesis that the war against the Nazis might well be carried on from the air for the present was underscored indirectly in a message to King George of Great Britain from President Roosevelt, who is about to resume his

Seeburger To Quit, Hits At 'Politics'

Charles J. Seeburger, Mansfield fire chief for the past 10 years, said today he would submit his resignation immediately to Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff, asking that it be effective Aug. 25.

Seeburger, who refused to quit his post more than a year ago when the city administration requested it, said today he was quitting "because the administration has put too much politics in the fire department."

He charged that Mayor W. J. Locke had "used his influence" to have one of the city's new pumpers sent to No. 4 fire station on Newman street which, Seeburger said, "didn't need it as much as some of the others."

Beyond his statement about the placing of the new fire truck, Seeburger did not elaborate on his charges of "too much politics." He said, however, that "there's more politics in the department now than at any time since I have been a member of it."

Seeburger said he was an applicant for the fire chief's post at the Parsel air supply depot near Shelby and expected to learn within a few days whether he would be employed to head the fire-fighting activities at the big government project.

A veteran of the Mansfield fire department, he has been a fireman in the city for nearly 32 years and became chief Feb. 1, 1933. Since then he has directed the department's work at a number of major fires. Among them was the Congregational church fire, the Home Materials company blaze, and the fire which virtually destroyed the Hartman Electric company plant last winter. Seeburger suffered a head injury at the Hartman Electric fire.

Now 64, Seeburger could have retired on a pension 10 years ago after completing 22 years of service with the fire department. He said, however, that he preferred to stay on the job as long as he is physically able to work.

His resignation will go to the service-safety director today, the chief said. After it becomes effective, the service-safety director will name his successor from an eligible list established by the civil service commission.

Seeburger is on a two-weeks vacation now and he asked that his resignation be effective the day his vacation ends, he said.

When U. S. Bombers Hit Ploesti Oil Fields

This spectacular picture shows American B-24 Liberator bombers during their attack on the Ploesti oil wells in Rumania August 8. Planes can be seen over the Astra Romana refinery through the gaps of black smoke. King George of Great Britain has formally congratulated President Roosevelt on the feat of the Ninth U. S. Air Force in the bombing which virtually knocked the rich source of Axis oil supply out of the war.

QUEBEC TALKS WAIT ARRIVAL OF ROOSEVELT

VITAL MOVES IN MAKING

British Correspondent Hints Eisenhower May Attend War Planning Session.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Indicating that political considerations of world-wide nature will enter into the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Quebec, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today announced that he will attend the meeting.

(By Associated Press)

QUEBEC — The Quebec war conference entered its second week today amid strong indications that the unique manner in which it has been handled has been designed deliberately to intensify Axis nervousness over major military developments predicted by President Roosevelt.

Arrangements have been completed to receive the American chief executive here shortly for his sixth formal war council with Prime Minister Churchill.

(Don Iddon, London Daily Mail correspondent, suggested in a dispatch from Quebec that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might attend the meeting and added that he might already be in Canada, though he said this could not be confirmed.

("There is a growing impression in Quebec that Allied leaders and the military staff are waiting for something and someone—not just President Roosevelt," Iddon wrote. "It may be they are waiting for Eisenhower.")

In previous meetings of the two United Nations leaders, secrecy has been the rule.

But this time the entire pattern was changed. It was pretty much of a certainty that Churchill again was coming across the Atlantic. His arrival in Quebec was announced. The press was allowed to state that he and Mr.

Allied Big Guns Blast at Axis Across Strait

Berlin Says All Forces and Material Have Been Evacuated, Admitting Fall of Island; Demolition Of Italian Toe Started.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—American forces entered Messina this morning, virtually ending the Sicilian campaign, and Allied headquarters announced the enemy was carrying out demolition of the north coast of the Italian toe thus indicating his intention of withdrawing farther up the Italian peninsula.

The complete occupation of Sicily, the entering wedge in the fortress of Europe, was only a matter of hours as the Americans on the east coast of the island wiped up hapless Italian forces left stranded by their German allies.

American doughboys fought hand-to-hand with the enemy through the bomb-scarred streets of the sprawling hillside port less than three miles from Italy.

Already their 155-millimeter "Long Tom" artillery had shelled the enemy on the Italian mainland, said dispatches from the front.

The American Third division, in which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once commanded a regiment, reached the outskirts of the city about 8 p. m., yesterday, then stormed into the city this morning. This was the division which was first into Palermo.

Meanwhile a vanguard of the British Eighth army, forced to deal with greater demolitions and to set back a strong enemy counter-attack, had leap-frogged to a point eight miles south of Messina by staging a Commando landing..

The main force, an Allied headquarters' communique said, was at Santa Teresa Di Riva, approximately 20 miles south of Messina.

(The German radio, in a broadcast recorded in London, already had conceded the fall of Sicily.

(It said German and Italian troops had been evacuated from Sicily with all their equipment "to the last machine-gun" after destruction of all military installations and harbor works at Messina.

("Not only all wounded but also several thousands of British, American and Canadian prisoners of war were brought to the mainland," it said.)

The lightning advance of the Americans, 14 miles from Messina yesterday, was facilitated by a sea-borne landing. This latest landing of amphibious troops by the U. S. Navy, the fourth such attack in the last 10 days, was near Milazzo and was carried out yesterday morning without great difficulty.

Meanwhile, a naval communique announced strong Allied naval forces were blockading the foot of the Italian peninsula from the Gulf of Policastro, 150 miles up the west coast and half way to Naples, to Cape Rizzuto on the heel of the boot.

The sea forces have been sweeping nightly into Messina strait, it was announced, and have carried out a series of bombardments of the Italian coast.

Scalea on the south side of the Gulf of Policastro was heavily shelled Saturday night, with 1,000 shells thrown into the port in 20 minutes.

Large formations of Allied planes pounded communications in Italy and to lesser extent in Sicily with hundreds of tons of explosives yesterday.

A large force of Liberators from the Middle East command attacked Foggia, Tortorella and San Nicola airdromes in southern Italy with more than 300,000 pounds of bombs and shot down 43 of the nearly 100 enemy fighters that gave them a fierce battle. Eight bomber were los'

The full power of the northwest African air forces was thrown into the battle to prevent the Germans and Italians from regrouping on the mainland.

The Viterbo airdrome, 45 miles north of Rome, again was hammered.

Ten barges were destroyed and 16 damaged and four merchant vessels torpedoed by Allied aircraft in harassing attacks on shipping and blows at the last evacuation efforts of the enemy. Two of the ships were caught 35 miles north of

Faces Charges of Possessing Liquor, Gambling Devices

Literally walking into the hands of a city detective yesterday afternoon with two suitcases allegedly filled with contraband liquor, James Henry Crouch, 63, colored, of 261½ North Main street, was charged with the illegal possession of liquor and keeping and exhibiting gambling devices.

Officers quickly raided his establishment on North Main street, and said they confiscated more than 30 bottles of liquor, a dice table and 43 dice, a money changer, and six decks of cards.

While in the alley beside Crouch's rooms on another call, Detective Herbert Palmer saw

DIE IN BOMBER CRASH

PUEBLO, Colo. —(AP)— Ten men died in the 200 foot crash of a four-engined bomber only a mile from the Pueblo air base Monday. The base public relations office said 1st Lt. Joseph M. Dulski of Cleveland, O., was among those killed.

GOOD NEWS?

That's Knox's Hint as No News Comes From Aleutians.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Knox said today of the navy's prolonged silence on operations against Kiska Island: "No news is good news."

There has been no announced action against Kiska since July 30. When the navy secretary was asked at his press conference why there should be such an absence of information about an island on which announcements previously had been made almost daily, he first said that he presumed bad weather had brought on a period of inactivity.

A newsman suggested that warships which bombarded the island several times during July should be able to operate regardless of the weather.

Knox grinned and said: "Well, you know the old story—No news is good news."

ANGRY AT OPA

Food Price Expert Quits, Irked at "Lack of Knowledge."

NEW YORK — (INS) — Carl W. Kimball, regional OPA food price specialist for 14 months today had resigned "disgusted with lack of executive knowledge" and "office politics" within the OPA.

In a bitter letter of resignation, Kimball, complained that only three men were serving on the food panel and that none of them had had business experience. He has been in the food business for 40 years.

BOARD HIRES 8 NEW TEACHERS

Only Three Vacancies Remain on Staff; All Principals Re-assigned To Posts.

Eight new teachers were employed last night by the Mansfield board of education, leaving only three staff vacancies to fill before the 1943-44 term gets under way, Wednehday, Sept. 8.

At the same time the board accepted resignations of five teachers and other school employes and granted leaves of absence to two others.

Employed for teaching jobs were Mrs. Margaret Yuncker, 25 Raleigh avenue; Mrs. Frances Edelstein, 586 Bigelow road; Miss Florence Wareham, Butler; Miss Jane Kelley, 389 West Third street; and Frank Leavitt, 281 Vennum avenue. Miss Kelley will teach home economics and Leavitt is a shop instructor.

Hired as permanent substitute teachers were Mrs. Rex Hess, 654

POLICE ROUTED

ELIZABETH, N. J.— (U P) —Police, ready to shoot it out with burglars, found no trace of criminals when they entered a home here last night, but they did run into a battle.

They were attacked—and routed—by swarms of fleas, which continued to hold possession of the house long after the patrolmen had been driven to the showers.

Charges Bricker, Bender 'Trickery' In Highway Posts

Continuing its investigation of alleged irregularities in the operation of the state highway department, the Cleveland Press had charged today that "the Bricker-Bender political machines have resorted to deliberate subterfuge and trickery to place and keep party politicians on the state highway department payroll."

The newspaper, which said yesterday that 35 officials and employes of the highway department had resigned as ward leaders and precinct committeemen in the

IGNORES SLASH IN GAS COUPONS

Mansfield Station Operator Demands, and Gets, Official Order on Reduction.

Although coupon values dropped to three gallons at midnight Sunday, the operator of one Mansfield gasoline station was still selling four gallons of gas per coupon Monday afternoon but ration officials halted him in short order. C. C. Beelman, ration board chairman, who refused to disclose the name of the operator, said a gasoline company agent discovered the four-gallon per coupon sale while checking the station yesterday.

The operator told the distributor he would continue to sell at the four-gallon rate until he received official notice of the reduction in coupon values, explaining that 'I don't read newspapers and I know of no reduction order."

The distributor immediately went to the ration board and obtained an "official letter" for the attendant, Beelman said.

SEES BRIGHTER RUBBER FUTURE

Goodyear Chief Says Synthetic Tires Will Be Plentiful Soon.

NEW YORK —(AP)— P. W. Litchfield, chairman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, says (the United Nations) have passed te crisis in regard to necessary tires for military and civilian use."

Interviewed shortly after his return from a trip to England, Litchfield asserted yesterday that tires "for pleasure driving, or at least a much broader civilian use than now," should be released by next spring.

"By October we will be producing synthetic rubber in quantities equal to natural rubber used in the United States before the war," said Litchfield.

GREEN BEARISH

Doesn't Think Labor Unity's Possible Immediately.

CHICAGO— (AP)— President William Green of the American Federation of Labor is bearish on the subject of labor unity.

The subject did not even come up at the summer meeting of the AFL executive council, which adjourned late yesterday.

Said Green, "I don't think labor unity within the next six months is within the realm of possibility."

MORE LIQUOR!

Ohio Ration To Be Increased In Next Period, Report.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's bottled liquor ration for the period starting Aug. 23 likely will be increased over the quart-or-fifth allowance each four weeks, a liquor department executive intimated today.

The official indicated the state had built up a liquor backlog since rationing was inaugurated June 1 sufficient to warrant a more generous distribution to retail store customers.

This could be achieved by shortening the rationing period, heretofore four weeks, or hiking the ration unit if the same purchase period prevails.

14 BEAT OHIO

Other States Do Better on 35-Mile Speed Compliance.

WASHINGTON— (U P) —The public roads administration said today that a recent survey disclosed that two-thirds of Ohio's passenger car drivers are conforming to the war time speed limit of 35 miles per hour, but 14 other states have better compliance records.

Maine, Vermont and South Dakota with compliance records of 88, 82 and 80 per cent respectively, took top honors while Ohio had a record of 67 per cent compliance.

Work-School Schedule Being Worked Out for High Pupils

Mansfield boys and girls of high school age who are holding summer jobs in the city's war plants may be able to continue to hold their jobs and attend school this winter, under a plan being worked out by school officials.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller told the board of education last night that the schools would attempt to "cooperate as far as possible" with the industries in keeping the pupils working, at least as long as their work doesn't interfere too much with their classes.

While no figures were available as to the number of school-age boys and girls who are working at war jobs, Supt. Miller said the number was "very large." He said he had conferred with heads of the vocational and commercial departments on a plan for arranging class schedules whereby the working pupils could take all of their school work in a half day so they would be free the rest of the day to work.

"We may run into some difficulty with seniors who must have four more credits to graduate," the superintendent told the board, "since it will be hard to arrange their classes so as not to interfere with a full shift at an industrial plant."

While Supt. Miller didn't ask the school board for action on the proposal, board members agreed that the plan was a good one and told him to go ahead with the proposal for setting up a work-school schedule.

Yanks Sweep Far Past Munda, Seize Vella Lavella Island

(By Associated Press)

American sea-borne forces sharply imperilled Japan's last major strongholds in the Solomon islands today as Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed that U. S. troops had captured Vella Lavella island, 50 miles northwest of fallen Munda, in a surprise invasion on Sunday.

Vella Lavella lies in the heart of the enemy's northern Solomon defenses, only 70 miles below the Japanese network of six air bases on and around Bougainville island at the upper tip of the 600-mile-long archipelago.

The coup not only threatened Bougainville but jeopardized the Japanese bastion at Vila on Kolombangara island, immediately above Munda. Japanese garrisons on four intervening islands between Kolombangara and Vella Lavella were in danger of being starved out through lack of communications.

A communique said 34 Japanese planes were shot down during the landing on Vella Lavella. Two U. S. planes were lost.

FORMER RESIDENTS ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Sipes Tell of Wedding of Daughter, Bettie Louise, and Jack L. Cunningham of Indianapolis.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN R. SIPES, who formerly resided at 220 Penn avenue, and now living at Rahway, N. J., are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Bettie Louise, to Jack L. Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cunningham, Odon, Ind.

The wedding was solemnized Aug. 8 at 2:30 o'clock at the Christian church in Indianapolis, Ind., in the presence of many relatives and friends. Attendants for the couple were Miss Evelyn Ruth Carpenter of Odon, maid of honor, and Garlin A. Williams, also of Odon, best man.

The bride wore a white silk jersey frock, white hat with veil and white shoes. Her small bridal bouquet was composed of Briarcliff roses centered with gladioli which was carried on a white Testament. Miss Carpenter wore a pale pink frock with white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds, gypsophlia and pink gladioli.

The new Mrs. Cunningham was graduated from the Mansfield high school in the class of 1942, was a member of the Rainbow Girls, the high school band and the Baptist church.

Since moving to Rahway last June she has graduated from the Franklin Beauty college at Elizabeth, N. J. She is a member of the Eastern Star, Rahway, N. J.

Mr. Cunningham is a graduate of Odon high school and has been employed with the Allison division of the General Motors Corp., Indianapolis. They will reside at 946 North Kealing avenue, Indianapolis.

Following the nuptials a reception was held at the home of the groom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Car.

Honor Husband With Party at Kerr Home Here

Mrs. Jack Kerr, Rock road, entertained at her home Sunday in honor of the 32nd birthday anniversary of her husband. Twenty-six were present including two out-of-town guests, Mrs. Daisey Landis of Basil, O., and Bud Knowlton of Columbus.

Music and dancing were the diversions following a picnic dinner on the lawn of the home at the noon hour. Red and white appointments were used for the table decorations. A three tiered birthday cake centered the table. Music for dancing was furnished by a five piece orchestra. Soloist was Dick Kline. The honoree received many gifts from the group.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

She opened her purse, ostentatiously displaying a large roll of bills, selected a dollar bill and held it out. I knew that only a belated sense of caution about goading me too much kept her from tossing it contemptuously at me so that I would have to pick it up.

With equal enforced calmness, I took the bill with an obsequious "Thank you, Madam," while my fingers itched to throw the gratuity into her sneering face. Then, as she turned back into her room, I hurried across the hall, darting into the first empty room, and closing the door after me.

There, for a tense minute I fought myself back to composure, then went into the hall again.

Planned Departure.

That Ruth almost at once telephoned me she was checking out, and asked that her bill be rushed, I knew when I saw Smithers and Jenkins stealthily leave their rooms and dash for the stairway, evidently on their way to check Ruth's movements in accordance with Dicky's instructions. But it was not until I saw her come out of her room, apparently unperturbed, and go down in the elevator that I dared to draw a full breath. Then I dashed across the hall, seeing Dicky's door open as I did so, and almost literally fell into his arms.

"Hold me tightly, Dicky!" I faltered. "I'm ashamed, but I've been a bit scared."

"I was frightened myself that she might hand you one," he said, "but someone would have been at her the next second."

"I wasn't afraid so much of her striking me," I said truthfully, "as that she'd find out about that bag."

"You little nut!" he said fondly. "You sure have a one track mind. And now suppose you bring me up to date while we wait for the ring that will tell us she finally has flown this particular coop. I haven't dared open my door since she slammed it shut on me. Of course I knew Watkins was on the job in his room so that if she pulled anything on you, he'd be on hand, as a hotel detective, which would look reasonable to her. But she must have had her suspicions aroused in some way. Where did I fall down?"

"Thank you," I said demurely. "I'm sure you didn't," he said. "But it was a mistake anybody could have made."

He gripped me by the shoulder and gave me an exasperated little shake. "If you don't give me the low-down in a split second, "I'll forget I'm a gent!" he threatened, and I swung into a "round by round" account of my recent encounter with the "Wilderness Woman."

The telephone rang as I finished, and when he had answered it, he turned to me with relief in his eyes and voice.

Ruth Is Trailed.

"You can forget her until this afternoon, I fancy," he said. 'She's checked out,—and gone in a taxicab, with some good men trailing her. Come on, let's get down to Halloran and have your face washed. We'll walk down although it doesn't matter much who sees us now."

"It's just as well not to invite—" I began, but Dicky interrupted with a laugh.

"A dolar to a doughnut with a hole in it that you were going to say 'invidious comment'," he teased.

I flushed, but stood my ground. "That's exactly what I meant," I said stoutly.

"Good girl!" he commended, clapping me on the shoulder. Then he caught he to him tightly.

"Thank God you're out of this safely!" he said fervently: then kissed me and laughed again. 'That's for Maggie'," he said. 'When you have your face washed, I'll kiss you again as 'Madge'."

I waited until we had gone into the hall before I answered. Then, "I like them no matter what alias I'm sporting," I told him demurely as we went to the stairs.

'And you know I don't dare boss you out here!" he complained "Just wait though, my proud beauty. You're going to get kissed so hard you're going to shriek for help—or mercy."

'Probably both," I said, knowing that our foolery was only the reaction from the nervous strain we had just undergone.

"You'll get neither!" he promised darkly as we came out on the fifteenth floor. "And now," he continued, "for Monsieur Halloran, and the great de-transformation scene."

Catholic Women Open War Stamp Drive Monday

Members of the Mansfield Deanery, Toledo Diocese, National Council of Catholic Women opened their war stamp drive Monday night at a meeting held in the St. Peter's Catholic church.

The slogan of the drive is "Give a Stamp—Get a Stamp!" and it is national in scope. The purpose is two-fold: To provide the government with added funds necessary for victory and to guarantee the National Catholic School of Social service a secure financial basis. At the end of the campaign the stamps will be converted into interest bearing bonds in the name of the school.

The National Catholic School of Social service is a graduate professional school opened during World war I for the training of social service workers. Its maintenance has always been the responsibility of the council. During the present world crisis the school is fulfilling the need for training experienced persons for the work of rehabitation necessary at the close of the war both here and abroad.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

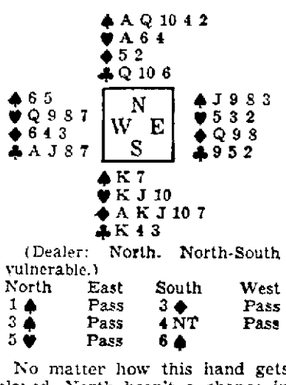
"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN STAND REPETITION

There is one admonition for average players which can stand any amount of repetition. It is that usually a trump suit is dangerous if the opponents hold as many as six cards in it. Less than half of the time these will be divided evenly, with three held by each defender. More often, some one of them will have four and the other two. This means that the declarer must be prepared to compete most of the time against a four-card trump holding by one defender. Such being the case, it is frequently better to try for a fit in some other suit, or for No Trumps in preference to a suit in which your side holds only seven cards.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♠

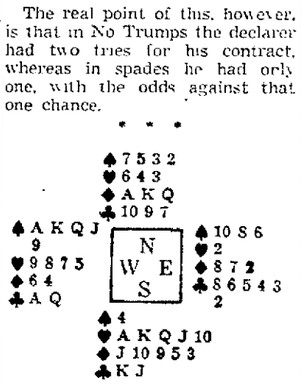
No matter how this hand gets played, North hasn't a chance in the world to make his contract. The club A is a sure winner, and so is the spade J, if the hand is played in spades. That contract was reached by a fair number of the pairs in a social duplicate, and all of these were, of course, set.

At some of the tables, South, instead of using a conventional slam call of 4-No Trumps, after hearing North's spade rebid, 3-Spades, called 4-Diamonds. The main purpose of this was to see if North would bid spades a third time. If so, he would be proclaiming possession of a six-card suit, in which event South's doubleton would have been adequate support.

But North in those cases bid 4-No Trumps, whereupon South immediately slammed the hand at 6-No Trumps. After East led a heart or club, this contract had a good chance to make as, after three rounds of spades got tried and the suit failed to break, the diamond finesse still remained as a chance for the contract, and of course it worked.

The real point of this, however, is that in No Trumps the declarer had two tries for his contract, whereas in spades he had only one, with the odds against that one chance.

* * *



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the soundest way for South to play this hand at 4-Hearts, after ruffing the second spade lead?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Aug. 18.

A thrilling and unforeseen circumstance may definitely set aside the recent depressed and limiting state of affairs, making way for some very concrete action in new and unaccustomed grooves of endeavor of major signilicance. It might be wise to grasp such situations with all the energies, abilities and resources at command, since they may carry promise of unusual denouement in the way of gain, stability, accumulations and future status and security of sound worth. While vigorous attack is advised, yet strategem and policy may also assist.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of definite about-face in their affairs, with depressions, stagnations and limitations suddenly removed, to make way for achievements which should have far reaching affect on the fortunes, with increased possessions and accumulations. Work for this with all the force, ingenuity and resources at hand, not forgetting to use finesse or dirpomacy.

A child born on this day may have much originality, ingenuity, skill and tenterprise, backed up by practical and constructive ideas and principles. It might however, be easily victimized, unless exerting shrewd vigilance.

HOUR OF GRACE + + +

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XXVIII

Since she had to pick up the children at eleven, she left the house at ten the next morning and drove slowly to Clare's. The chill of the morning giving a premonition of autumn, she had at the last moment put on a warm red sweater over her white cotton frock. The weather would be changeable from now on, she thought, but it was a perfect day for tennis and golf and it would be warmer by noon for those who wanted to swim.

She thought, I'm thinking of the weather and the children, and how happy Erica and Toby must be in the morning because I don't want to think of Clare, because I don't want to see her . . . To her I'm a girl who has done nothing for herself, a failure. She despises me for my lack of aggressiveness, my obscurity, my acceptance of things as they are. She doesn't know how aggressive I've had to be and how I've rebelled against things as they are . . . And to me she's like some bright hard metal . . . And yet I think of her in movement, always in movement and touching things, touching them but not feeling them . . . But I won't see her again after today unless we meet by chance . . . I wonder why Toby wanted me to see her . . . He said I'd find out a few things for myself. There's nothing I want to find out now. She can't hurt him and she can't hurt me. And she's only a woman, only a woman . . .

If there was any difference in the appearance of the house between yesterday afternoon and this morning it was that it looked more forlorn and neglected in the brighter light and with the ripped green awning now streaming tatters.

* * *

She stopped the car and sat a moment, filled with a nameless dread, a fear she could not define. Why was it not perfectly simple to walk to the front door and ring and to be received by one of Clare's servants? Why was it not as simple as that? This was childish nonsense, she thought. Sheer, childish nonsense . . . What did it matter if Clare made her feel small and gauche and a failure this last time?

Yet it was with a decided effort she got out of the car and walked around the silent house through grass tall and wet. It was with an even greater effort that she stepped up on the porch. The door was open and the living room stretched wide and handsome before her . . . and deserted. She stood a few moments, hoping to hear familiar human sounds. She heard nothing. There was only unnatural silence in a house with the windows and doors open . . .

She put her finger to the bell, hearing the loud shrill ring penetrate the silence. She waited but no one came. There were none of the familiar sounds that usually result from the ringing of a bell and the possibility of receiving a guest. No sounds from the kitchen or from upstairs . . . No sounds of any kind . . .

She rang the bell and waited and rang it once more and waited. Clearly there was no one here. No one in the house with the windows open and the garage doors open. The strangeness of it bewildered her. She tried to solve it but her thoughts always returned to the open door which revealed the hospitable living room. Somehow it seemed to her that the room was asking her to come in. Perhaps Clare was asleep. With the door open? Where were the servants? It was unlikely for her to give all of them a holiday . . . I'll come back later, she thought and she turned and walked down two steps and stopped. She could not leave . . . Returning to the open door she peered into the living room again and once more the room seemed to ask her to come in . . . She could not leave until she knew why this was strange and unnatural. Had Toby known she would find only silence? Was that why he had asked her to come? Then he knew she could not leave . . . She was doing exactly what he expected her to do.

Quietly, fearfully she opened the screened door and stepped inside, seeing that the clock above the brick fireplace had stopped. Even the clock was silent. Then she began to walk through the rooms where a light veil of dust had settled over the furniture and the few potted plants here and there were dying of thirst. She swung open the door that led to the kitchen. There was a soiled glass into which milk had been poured and drunk. Just one soiled glass and a small crystal ashtray into which had been squashed a lipstick-stained cigaret.

Returning to the living room she stood a few moments debating whether or not to go upstairs. She felt guilty at trespassing and at the same time a terrible urgency not to leave.

* * *

She walked slowly up the steps. There were five bedrooms on the second floor. She looked in four, heeding their lived-in look and the tasteful blending of many bright colors. She had seen them before, the first summer that the gregarious Haynes had opened the house and Mary Ann had so proudly shown it to her friends.

There was yet another bedroom, the master bedroom of the house. She recalled that it was decorated in a warm peach color as she turned and went toward it. It was Clare's bedroom and Fayne's, she thought.

The door was ajar. She gave it a little push and it swung back slowly, revealing Clare in the wide maple bed, Clare covered to her chin with a wrinkled pale blue sheet, her black hair spread fan-like upon the pillow, Clare in a deep sleep . . .

The sensation of guilt at her trespassing assailed her more sharply now. Clare was asleep and she, Meegan, would slip out of the house as quietly as possible . . . It was shameful, what she had done . . . As she reached for the door to close it again, she had to lean forward a little. . . . As she did so she was very close to Clare, so close that she saw that this was unnatural sleep, a sleep too deep and still . . . For Clare was not breathing . . . She was not asleep . . . She was dead.

In that moment of stark terror she felt that her own flesh was leaving her body and it was impossible for her to move or to utter a sound. She seemed to be only eyes that stared and burned at that still figure, that same figure heretofore always fluid and volatile . . . It was as if also an icy blast had struck her and it was with the greatest difficulty that she removed her hand from the knob, leaving the door still open. She was freezing, she thought, surely freezing, as she hugged her arms to her and shivered . . . Clare was dead . . .

Who had murdered her? What evidence of murder lay beneath the wrinkled sheet? Someone had killed her and covered her and closed her eyes and gone away, leaving the front door open . . .

Someone had killed Clare . . . Someone had come up the steps as she, Meegan had come up the same steps. Then someone had come to this room and killed her so quietly that there was no evidence of a struggle. Everything was in place . . . Yes, everything was in place except the words they had said to each other and words left no mark. Someone had come up the steps . . . Not an anonymous person but someone she, Meegan, knew . . . Either Toby or Van or Adele or Sue or perhaps Erica or Elinor McLean or perhaps even she, Meegan, in a blind moment she could not remember . . . One of them had come up the steps to this room and killed Clare and covered her and closed her eyes and gone away, leaving the front door open . . . Or Fayne, she thought. Or Fayne . . .

* * *

One by one she saw them coming up the steps and into this room . . . Toby an hour before his wedding when he said he was going to the club for cigarets. Toby dressed for his wedding, coming into this room and murdering Clare, silencing her because only death could silence her and keep her from the church, . . . And then he had straightened his tie and pushed back his hair and gone to the church to marry Erica . . . She remembered Toby's hand over Erica's as they cut their wedding cake. Toby?

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

U. S. TANK IS BEST, SAY NAZI EXPERTS

Germany Will Doubtless Copy Gyroscopic Feature of General Sherman Tank, Berlin Radio Declares

By The Associated Press

A special new German institute for testing captured tanks has adjudged the American "General Sherman" the best type the Allies have turned out, the Berlin radio said yesterday, adding that the Nazis "doubtless" would copy its construction—particularly the gyroscopic gun-mount, which they consider its outstanding feature.

"Doubtless" Best Type

"According to the findings of the Institute," said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, "the 'General Sherman' tank is doubtless the best type the allied armament industry has yet produced.

"A special innovation on this type tank, which by a gyroscopic system prevents the gun from being affected by the jolting of the tank when travelling on rough grounds, greatly interested the German experts. They believe this to be the first attempt at borrowing from the construction of warships for the construction of arms for warfare on land, and doubtless it will be copied soon."

WHEN THE GERMAN RADIO paid glowing tribute to the General Sherman tank—for once it was telling the truth.

You see, tank battles used to be stop-and-go affairs, because a tank's heavy cannon could be aimed accurately only when the tank was at a complete standstill.

That was bad—because every stop naturally made the tank a juicy target for the enemy.

Then the Army Ordnance Department called on American industry for the solution of this problem. So the men of Westinghouse went into a huddle. And out of it came what has been called one of the greatest military developments of this War—a tank gun stabilizer that permits incredibly accurate fire while the tank is charging ahead at full speed over rough ground!

And then, to button up the job, Westinghouse went into production on these gun stabilizers so fast and so thoroughly that almost before you could say "El Alamein," they were being produced in sufficient quantity to equip every American tank!

No wonder the Germans thought well of the General Sherman. And no wonder they considered its gun stabilizer its outstanding feature. For this one device has revolutionized the whole combat technique of tank fighting!

For us, tank battles are no longer stop-and-go affairs, with every stop offering the enemy a "sitting pigeon." American tanks are now more than 500% deadlier than ever before.

And the Westinghouse Research Laboratories, which developed the device—the Westinghouse engineers, who perfected it—and the men and women of Westinghouse who make it in great numbers—are proud as Punch.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

You can have plenty of excitement in a bomber right here in the U. S., without going on any mission.

For that you have the word of Lt. Joe Lesch, bomber pilot, who used to manage Yuncker Sports athletic teams and act as president of the City basketball league and softball association.

Joe is home on a short furlough from the Texas Panhandle where he has been flying the big babies around.

* * *

"A pilot doesn't do all the worrying on those big bombers," says Joe. "He has plenty of help in that department. Every member of the crew can tell when the least little thing goes wrong.

"One motor conked out on me one day just after we'd gotten off the ground, and I signaled the tower that we were coming in for emergency landing. Just then another motor went out, and there we were, too low to use our parachutes. There was nothing else to do but take our chances on a landing at low speed.

* * *

"I could just see the end of the landing strip as we nosed down. Fortunately we came in all right. And every member of the crew hopped out and kissed the ground. It felt mighty good to us."

* * *

For crack-ups deluxe, without getting off the ground, I refer Joe to Hank Miesle, the former Fremont catcher, who was in training at Mansfield airport last spring as a Naval air cadet.

Hank got his crack-up in a football game at Iowa Preflight, and was washed clear out of the navy with a bum knee which didn't keep him from playing a lot of baseball for the Fremont semi-pro club this summer.

* * *

Hank's regiment baseball team is leading the second half race in the camp league with six wins and no defeats, after finishing second in the first half.

Miesle reports he's in the best condition of his career—the Texas sun and air, and long hikes have done that.

Some of his teammates are Julio Bonetti of the Browns, Pete Angelovich, property of the Detroit Tigers, and a pitcher and shortstop from the Piedmont league who were booked to join the Newark Bears.

* * *

So Hank is happy, even if he was washed out of the navy. And why not? He's hitting a neat .340.

One Run Margins In Indus League

Local 758 edged out an 8-7 victory over Barnes Manufacturing in the Industrial softball league last evening, scoring the winning run in the ninth after the score had been tied in the seventh and again in the eighth.

Bush hit a home run for the winners.

In other games, for which box scores were incomplete, Mansfield Tire edged Great Lakes 10-9, and Ideal Electric nipped Tappans by the same score.

Jim Bagby Loses to Senators

Late-Inning Rally Defeats Tribe Ace.

CLEVELAND—(AP)— The Cleveland Indians sent Jim Bagby against Washington yesterday, but the Tribe's pitching ace — with only two days' rest—fell victim to a late inning rally and the Redskins dropped from second to third position, swapping places with the Nationals.

* * *

Idle today as they await a New York Yankee invasion, the Cleveland club went into the eighth tied at three all, but the Nats exploded for four hits and three runs to win 6 to 3.

* * *

Bagby, who had given up only three safe blows, was nicked for all four hits in the disastrous inning and was relieved by Jack Salveson. The relief hurler retired the side but not until an outfield fly had produced the sixth Washington tally. It was the right-hander's 11th defeat against 13 triumphs. Wilfred LeFebvre worked for the Nats and gave up nine hits.

The Yankees open a four-game series tomorrow with a morning and afternoon doubleheader, second such bargain bill tried here this season. A night game is scheduled for Thursday.

WIND UP SERIES

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Cincinnatit Reds end a pleasant sojourn in the Bronx today playing the last of four games against the New York Giants.

Already the Reds have won three. Yesterday they chalked up their fifth victory in a row by downing the Giants 5 to 2.

* * *

Behind eight-hit pitching by Johnny Vander Meer, the Reds played errorless in the field and did their hitting when it counted.

* * *

The issue was settled in the first inning when Cincinnati scored three runs off starting Pitcher Johnny Wittig. Bert Haas, who has been playing superb baseball since he was moved to centerfield, hit a single, Frank McCormick did likewise, Eric Tipton walked, and Little Steve Mesner hit a base-cleaning double. Mesner was thrown out attempting to stretch the hit into a triple.

The Reds' infield hung up a pair of double plays for a season total to 135.

Ken Chase, a former American league portsider, will pitch for the Giants today, against Clyde Shoun or Ray Starr.

SPRINGFIELD LIKED FOR LEGION TITLE

CHARLESTON, W. Va. —(AP)—The American Legion Junior baseball team of Springfield, O., undefeated in regional tournament play here, sought today to earn its way to a sectional meet by defeating the Belle nine, loser of a single contest in the two-down-and-out tourney. Last night's Springfield-Belle game was postponed because of wet grounds. Should Belle win this arternoon's fray, the final tilt will be played tonight.

Zivic Plans Retirement

Says He'll Quit Before He Gets Slap-Happy.

By JOHN B. DELANEY

PITTSBURGH — (U.P.) — Former welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic, who has more things on the fire at one time than an army cook, disclosed today that he was considering retiring at the end of 1943 after 13 busy years in the beak-busting business.

But Fritzie, a crafty ringman with a squeaky voice, is no sucker. So he'll continue to fight if the pickings continue as easy as they have been the past two years.

"It all depends on how I make out this year," he said. "I think I will retire, but I can't say definitely. If the boys start pushing me around too much, then I'll quit because I don't want to end up slap-happy."

One of the things he plans to do if—and when—he quits is to have that famous, punch-twisted nose streamlined. Then he hopes to try his hand, and his new face, as master of ceremonies for a Pittsburgh night club at $300 a week.

At 30, Zivic isn't as sharp as he once was but he makes up this deficit through experience. In his last bout he methodically cut down young Kid McCoy at Detroit, a tough youngster of 23, to score a four-round KO. Despite his age, Fritzie has been traveling at a terrific pace this year, participating in seven bouts. He won four and lost three and has a busy program lined up. The veteran's next start will be at Philadelphia Monday night when he goes against lightweight champion Bob Montgomery.

After that he'll sandwich in two or three bouts before making a tour of the west coast in October.

"Luke Carney (his late manager) would turn over in his grave if he knew the fast pace I'm traveling at my age," Zivic said. "But I might as well make hay while I can."

Zivic's record is a tribute to his skill with the mittens. He started his professional career in 1931 and in 169 fights has won 126, sixty-four by knockouts; lost 36, and drew in seven. Only three times was he knocked out, by Laddie Tonelli in 1934, Milt Aron in 1939 and Ray (Sugar) Robinson in 1942.

Fritzie reached the pinnacle of his career when he won the welterweight championship from Henry Armstrong on Oct. 4, 1940, but he lost it to Freddie Cochrane nine months later.

Zivic has earned a lot of money with his fists, and has managed to hold on to most of it. He owns a $30,000 home in nearby Mt. Lebanon, is the proprietor of the Hickey Park Boxing Arena and has a finger in a number of other business interests.

Which makes it certain that he won't have to go on relief when he finally does hang up the gloves.

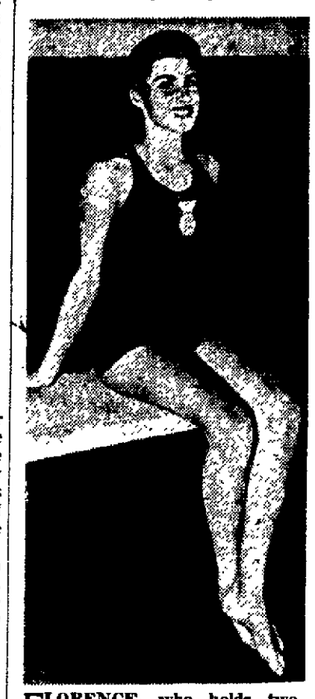
Owns Five Crowns At 12

INTRODUCING Florence Schmitt, 12-year-old Port Washington, N. Y., free style swim sensation who holds five championships.



FLORENCE, who holds two senior titles, is shown above sitting on a diving board before getting ready for actual competition.

NOT A BAD SWAN dive for a girl whose specialty is swimming free style and not diving from a springboard.

FLORENCE SCHMITT, who recently won three championships in 11 days, is shown going through her free style motion. She is the champion senior and junior national long distance swimmer, has to her credit the junior national outdoor 220-yard free style and the Metropolitan New York senior and junior 440-yard free style crowns.

* * *

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. —(AP)— King Neptune has had many beautiful mermaids, but experts doubt if any of them could match the speed of Florence Schmitt, the 12-year-old Port Washington, N. Y., Junior high school student who holds five major swimming titles.

* * *

The 130-pound 5 foot 7 Long Island miss promises to sweep all opposition aside at almost any free style distance. Already she holds two senior championships, including the women's national long distance title, a three-mile event held recently at Clementon Lake, N. J.

* * *

Brown eyes with flowing hair to match, a sparkling set of teeth that stand out sharply against her smooth, dark olive complexion and an ingratiating smile are a few of Florence's assets.

In taking the senior long distance grind, Florence dethroned Miss Ann Hardin of Indianapolis. It was her third title-winning performance in 11 days, the others coming in the junior national long distance swim at two and a half miles and the junior national 220-yard free style event. Miss Hardin, a four-time victor, trailed Florence 70 yards at Clementon.

During the indoor season, Florence took the measure of another champ, Miss Marilyn Shaner of New York, in the 440-yard senior metropolitan free style test. She also holds the indoor metropolitan New York quarter-mile junior crown.

Florence is a member of the Women's Swimming Association team coached by L. de B. Handley, Olympic tutor.

"I've been swimming since I was eight," says Florence. "My father taught me the fundamentals and Mr. Handley took over later. He perfected my strokes and made me a better swimmer generally.

* * *

"I know what pace I can keep during a race so that I still have enough energy for a sprint finish. I try to do two miles a day during the summer and average about a mile daily during the indoor season."

* * *

Florence already looks toward the future. Her ambition is to be a physical education instructor so that she can teach others how to swim. She doesn't adhere to any rigid schedule but believes in practice and more practice.

She is fairly conservative about her diet and is fond of ice cream and chocolate candy but in moderate proportions. The meat shortage isn't to her liking.

"The girls on the WSA team eat steak before a race," says Florence. "Beef gives us energy, but we don't have too much meat now. Guess we'll have to go back to candy for our energy."

STANFORD INDIANS SUSPEND FOOTBALL

PALO ALTO, Calif. —(AP)—Stanford's football Indians bit the dust today—war victims.

Stanford will not field a team this year—or probably for the duration of the war because there aren't enough interested, able-bodied non-army men on the campus to make up a squad.

Coach Marchie Schwartz and his staff will devote their energies to the army's physical fitness program at Stanford.

Terranova Cops Feather Title

Knocks Out Callura In Eighth Round.

NEW ORLEANS —(U.P.)— Phil Terranova of New York resigned as National Boxing association featherweight champion today following his eight-round knockout of Jackie Callura, Hamilton, Ont., in a scheduled 15-round bout at Pelican stadium last night.

* * *

The 23-year-old Bronx Italian pounded Callura into the canvas with hard, sharp jabs from both hands. He set the champion on the floor early in the round for a nine count and then loosed an uppercut after less than a minute of the round to bring the bout to a close.

* * *

Terranova opened his offensive in the fourth when Callura began to tire. A series of hard right and a jolting body attack had the champion in trouble as the challenger scored almost at will.

In the fifth Terranova appeared to have Callura set up for a knockout.. But the champion then moved out of reach until the final seconds of the round, when he stepped in to catch Terranova near the ropes and land two stinging body blows as the stanza ended.

* * *

Terranova's greater boxing skill resulted in Callura's being completely outclassed in the sixth. The sixth. The champion was tiring fast and Terranova sent hard jabs to his face until the Canadian was bleeding freely.

In the seventh Callura again attempted to take the initiative and failed as Terranova, sending hard blows to the head, staggered his opponent and had him on the verge of a knockout at the bell.

At the opening of the eighth the new champion caught Callura flush on the chin with a hard right that dropped him for the nine count. Then came the uppercut that ended the brawl.

Terranova weighed 124 pounds; Callura, 124¼.

GOES IN TRAINING

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md. —(AP)— Sgt. Joe Louis, who was to have started a global boxing tour under the management of Uncle Sam's war department tomorrow, has been given a two-week period to get ready for the grind which now will get under way Aug. 30.

Two New Dodgers Star In Victory Over Cards

Bums Change Horses In Stream, Find Going Much Improved.

By JOHN CASHMAN, INS Sports Writer.

CHANGING horses in midstream is generally regarded as a fatal maneuver, but you can't prove this by the Brooklyn Dodgers. The aggregation of Bums that last night whipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 3, in a twilighter, no more resembled the team that started the 1943 season than Count Fleet resembles a Percheron.

* * *

Two new Brooklynites, Howard Schultz and Gene Hermanski, starred in the line-up. Schultz, the 6 foot, 6½-inch first baseman acquired Sunday from the St. Paul club of the American association, made himself right at home in his Brooklyn debut, by swatting a single and double, and comporting himself with grace in Dolph Camilli's old spot. Hermanski, assigned to right field, gave Brooklyn new hope by coming through in the clutches. And the entire team, sensing, perhaps, that something new had been added, discarded the drab play and futile nonsense that has stamped Dodgers' performances in the past, and belted the Cards in the puss.

* * *

The Dodgers walloped Mort Cooper for four runs in the fifth. It was Hermanski and Schultz who started Brooklyn on the right trail with a walk and a single, respectively. There followed Bragan's single, Wyatt's first of two doubles, and singles by Bordagaray and Vaughan.

* * *

Elsewhere in the National league, things were about the same. The New York Giants played to the smallest crowd of the Polo Grounds season—2,142—in dropping their 68th game of the year, 5 to 2, to the Cincinnati Reds.

Ducky Medwick did most of the stickwork in scoring New York's tallies, hitting a homer in the second, then pushing in another with a fourth-frame double.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Boston Braves, 5 to 1, after breaking a 1-all tie in the seventh with two unearned runs. Both clubs made seven hits, but Boston twirlers Al Javery and Dave Odom were charged with eight walks and a hit batsman, while Pittsburgh's John Gee issued only one pass.

* * *

Schoolboy Rowe was the mainspring in the machine that broke the Philadelphia Phillies four-game losing streak last night when he allowed only five hits and defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3. The victory was Rowe's 11th of the season.

In the American league, the Washington Senators climbed back into second place with a 6 to 3 victory over the Cleveland Indians. A three-run explosion in the eighth inning clinched the verdict for the Nats after Mickey Vernon had tied the score with his sixth homer of the season.

* * *

The league-leading Yankees handed the Chicago White Sox a 7 to 0 defeat last night when Hank Borowy set the Sox down with four hits. Borowy's only close call came in the first inning when Moses singled and stole his 37th base of the year, but held the next three batters.

* * *

Another four-hitter in the American league last night was Boston hurler Mike Ryba, who won his sixth straight victory when the Red Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 9 to 0. Buck Newsom's seventh straight start ended in his sixth defeat when Boston pounded him and Charlie Fuchs for 14 safeties.

Joe Kirkwood Seems Irked

Resigns From P. G. A. After Ryder Treatment.

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist and professional at the Huntingdon Valley Country club, Abington, Pa., is awaiting action today on his resignation from the professional golfers association.

Kirkwood, asserting he was treated unfairly in the Ryder cup matches at Detroit this month, yesterday tendered the resignation to P. G. A. President Ed Dudley. He charged that Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament manager, had deleted his name from all play in the charity tournament after he had agreed to give a trick shot exhibition without charge.

* * *

"Corcoran gave me his definite confirmation that I was to play on the Hagen team in the Ryder matches," Kirkwood said, "and until such time as the P. G. A. sees fit to be represented by someone more capable than Corcoran, I have no desire to be a member.

* * *

"As to Walter Hagen's boast of having beaten me in a practice round, he forgot to mention that I had driven from just west of Pittsburgh that day and was in no shape to play golf. If he still thinks he can play golf, I have $2,000 to wager and I will play him any time, cash on the line. All proceeds to go to the Red Cross or any other charity."

Rickenbacker Sees Germany Holding Out Until 1944

GIVES REPORT ON LONG TOUR OF WAR ZONES

Predicts It Will Take Another Year To Subdue Japs After Nazis Have Been Beaten.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, just returned from a 55,000-mile inspection tour of war zones, predicted today that at the present rate of progress of the war, "Germany will not even crack before the fall of 1944 at the best."

Then, he said, it would take at least another year to defeat "another savage and treacherous enemy in the Pacific."

"Only a miracle can bring victory sooner," Rickenbacker predicted in a statement issued as he called newspapermen to his office here for a press conference.

But Rickenbacker added:

"I have confidence in the possibility of that miracle, and the accomplishment of that miracle lies in the hearts, heads and hands of every American man, woman and child, and your faith in God."

Rickenbacker, who made his 97-day tour for Secretary of War Stimson but made clear he was speaking "as a private citizen," asserted that "if Mr. Stalin has not seen fit or considered it advisable to participate in conferences with our president and Mr. Churchill, we must bear in mind that he is head of a great nation fighting a total war and has little time for anything but immediate results."

Rickenbacker said "I have found the Russian people anxious to know the Americans and British better."

"Consequently," he said, "let us keep an open mind. Let our great leaders if necessary, including our president and Mr. Churchill, visit Russia and Mr. Stalin with the hope of a more complete and better understanding—not only during the war, but for the post-war period as well, as it is my conviction we will need them, and they will need us, to preserve world peace, and eliminate the possibility of a third World war within the next 25 years."

Rickenbacker described in detail what he saw on his latest world trip, starting from Miami, Fla., last April 29.

He said the experience level of German fighter pilots on the Russian front had shown "a decided decline in the last six months" and the best German pilots had been withdrawn from the Russian front to combat the English and Americans in the west.

Rickenbacker said the Russian pilots were "enthusiastic" over the American types of planes.

Rickenbacker praised the Stormovik Russian tank-busting airplane which he said "is operated just like a dive bomber—but always below 500 feet altitude," and dwelt at length on the Russian system of speeding up war production through incentive payments.

NEED $200,000 ON TAX BILLS

As real estate tax collections for the last half of 1942 entered the final week, Richland countians still owed the county more than $200,000 in tax bills.

Collections yesterday amounted to $20,686 making the total $485,976. Treasurer Charles Payne said he expected this amount to reach the $500,000 mark today. He expects a near 100 per cent collection of the $691,000 owed the county.

2 DRAW FINES

Men Get $25 Each on Charge of Molesting.

Two colored men were fined $25 and costs each in Mansfield municipal court today after pleading guilty to molesting a white girl as she walked along Park avenue west before noon Sunday.

Fined by Judge H. H. Schettler were William Bully, 27, and Woodrow Claybon, 23, who said they came to Mansfield recently from Louisiana and Tennessee.

A girl war worker, in Mansfield said the colored youths drove their car close to the curb and asked her to take a ride with them Sunday. As she ignored them, the youths continued to follow her, she said. She described them to police who arrested them later at their rooms in Mansfield. Both said they were married.

Charges Bricker, Bender 'Trickery' In Highway Posts

Cleveland area following its expose, said today its investigation shows that the Bricker-Bender forces have "conspired to flout and circumvent the Ohio service statutes, which expressly forbid classified employes to engage in political activities."

The Press has charged throughout its investigation of the highway department set-up in Cuyahoga county that the G. O. P. organization has placed its workers in highway jobs, with a number of them drawing their pay for doing nothing.

An investigation and threat of action three years ago by County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan brought about the statement from highway officials that certain workers would be dismissed, the Press said. Later, however, many of the same workers were placed on the payroll again and sometimes back in the same jobs, the newspaper said.

Asserting that the highway department had cooperated with Congressman George Bender in keeping his political stooges on the payroll, the newspaper cited the case of E. M. (Manny) Rose who was supposed to have been fired by the highway department in a "clean-out" but was retained as laborer.

Rose resigned later to run for a short term on the Cleveland municipal bench and after serving a few weeks as judge, he was placed on the state payroll again, the Press said.

The newspaper story said other G. O. P. leaders in Cleveland who lost their civil service jobs with the state in April, 1940, later were restored to the highway department payroll. In some cases, husbands or wives of highway workers took over their G. O. P. committee posts when the original committeemen started work with the highway department, the Press said.

Missionary Group To Conduct Sale Of Yule Seals

The Missionary society of the First Lutheran church had been chosen today to conduct the 1943 Christmas seal sale by mail in the county, it was announced by Wayne Carlton, president of the Richland County Tuberculosis association.

Chairman of the drive will be Mrs. I. S. Perry, Cook road. Her first move will be to name chairmen to conduct the campaign in Lucas, Lexington, Bellville, Butler, Shelby, Shiloh and Plymouth.

Because of the threatened war-time increase in tuberculosis cases, the committee faces a bigger task than ever this year in raising more funds to combat the disease, Mrs. Perry said.

Although the seal sale won't begin until Nov. 26, the campaign plans will be mapped early so that no time will be lost in getting the program under way, she said. The sale will continue from Nov. 26 to Christmas.

"The association will need additional funds in 1944 in order to carry out the expanded program now planned to keep tuberculosis under control during the war," she added.

OK's HALL FUND

DAYTON — (INS) — Presidential approval of federal funds amounting to $76,000 for the building of a recreation hall at nearby Osborn, to serve enlisted army personnel, was announced today by the federal works agency.

The funds will provide for land acquisition, construction and equipping the standard type, "V-2" recreation building. The Federal Security Agency is listed as the project applicant.

KILLS SELF SHOOTING RATS

WILMINGTON, —(AP)— Lawrence A. Lancaster, jr., 12, of nearby Port William, died in Xenia hospital today of a gunshot wound self-inflicted accidentally while shooting rats last night.

Every day in every way—
THIS MAN IS SERVING YOU

YOU may think of him only as an Erie man—one of the more than a million American railroad men engaged in keeping trains operating.

But see how his activities are reflected in your daily life.

Daily delivery by the mailman to your door is evidence that this Erie man is on the job getting trains through in all kinds of weather.

Your daily newspaper put on the front steps by your newsboy is made possible by the tons of newsprint, ink, and metal the railroad delivers to the publishers.

Those fresh vegetables, fruits, and other foods you get from your grocer are the results of shipments brought in from all parts of the country by railroads.

Bread from the local baker, milk delivered by your milkman, fuel from your fuel dealer, electricity and gas from your public utilities, even the furniture in your home—all these and many other things you enjoy can be traced back to the products, supplies, and materials brought to your community by the Erie and other American railroads.

And when war came, the defense of our country and the protection of our families rested heavily upon the ability of these railroads to rush men, munitions, and supplies where they were needed most.

Our war plants and war workers depend upon the railroads to deliver raw materials and rush finished equipment to the fighting front.

No wonder this Erie Railroad man is proud of his job—proud of the part he is playing in making the American way of life a symbol of hope to the rest of the world.

Nowhere in all the world is there better or cheaper transportation than the service given by American railroads. This is being proved in war and will continue to be proved in peace.

RAIL ISSUES SPARK SLIGHT UPWARD TREND

June Revenues of Privately Owned Power Utilities Show Increase.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rails led the stock market on another modest recovery swing in today's early proceedings.

Southern Pacific tacked on a point at a fairly active opening and lesser gains were registered for Pennsylvania, National Power & Light, Sears Roebuck and U. S. Steel.

Holders of power and light company issues found satisfaction in the compilation of the federal power commission estimating electric operating revenues of the larger privately owned electric utilities in the United States for June amounted to $240,503,000 compared with $220,623,000 in the like 1942 month.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Covering by previous short sellers created an upturn in rye at the opening today. Wheat started lower, but soon recovered on the strength of rye. Oats were firm.

Wheat started unchanged to ⅛ lower, September $1.42⅞-¾. December $1.44⅜-⅞, and rye unchanged to ⅜ higher.

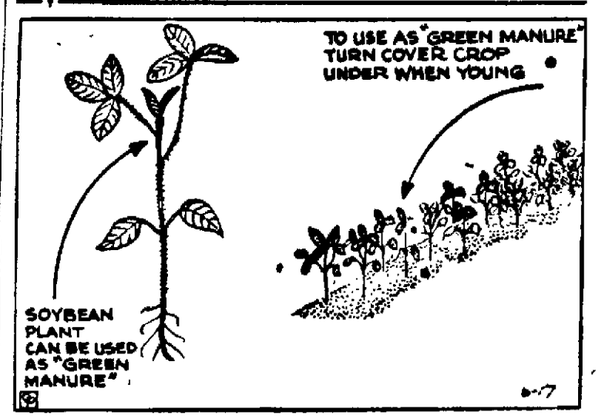
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Growing "Green Manure" for the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

The Victory garden can be replenished for next season by growing "green manure" in it. To accomplish this, plant cover crops in the vacant areas left as the various vegetables are harvested. The young cover crops when dug in give back to the soil much of what this year's vegetables have removed from it. This procedure prevents the soil from becoming depleted.

Soybean plants, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, make a splended soil-improving crop. Few, if any, annual crops have more power to loosen and mellow the soil.

Soybeans are not difficult to grow, but when they are being planted for the first time it is advisable to inoculate the seed. A well-inoculated crop yields more than one untreated. Buying certified seed is another precaution.

Soybeans when grown for "green manure" should be turned under while young, see illustration, for when a legume crop is seedy the nitrogen is already on its way out. Roots and stems of over-mature crops are more fibrous and tough and require a longer time to decompose when turned under.

RETRACTS STORY OF 3RD SLAYING

Clevelander Admits Account of Killing Was Hoax; Inquiry Goes on.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Police resumed questioning of Henry W. Hagert, 17, today after the self-confessed slayer of two 13-year-old brothers admitted that his confession to murdering a third boy was a hoax designed to relieve the missing boy's foster parents of worry.

Hagert confessed to shooting Edgar Pugh, 15, and throwing his body in the Cuyahoga river last March 9, but later admitted that his story was false. Detectives had been frankly skeptical of the tale since he signed the confession Sunday night. The Pugh boy still is missing.

Coast guardsmen dragged the Cuyahoga river unsuccessfully for seven hours yesterday before the youth admitted the hoax.

Funeral services were held for James and Charles Collins, murdered brothers whose bodies were found in Bay Village after Hagert led police to the scene.

John Buchanan, 9-year-old son of a city food inspector, was reported in much improved condition at a hospital. Hagert admitted to abducting Buchanan, criminally attacking him and holding him captive overnight shortly before he slew the Collins twins.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Nobody who gives the matter a second thought will be tricked by the Italian move of declaring Rome an open city.

This is a piece of Axis cunning. It does not invite serious consideration, and probably is not intended as anything more than a bit of psychological warfare to cause argument and dissension on the Allied side.

Clapper

The Italian government is fully aware of our terms. It is fully aware of what we mean by unconditional surrender. We mean that we will not stop fighting until Italy ceases her resistance and we occupy the country.

By the stunt of "proclaiming" Rome an open city, the Italians are asking—or pretending to ask—that we abandon our attacks on the capital of Italy. It is as if the British had proposed during the blitz of 1940 that the Germans stop bombing London. The Germans would have stopped bombing London then only on condition that Britain surrender. They only stopped the blitz when they found that it was costing them more than it was worth.

• • •

Actually the Italian proposition is a contemptible one. The Axis is trying to cash in on the fact that the Vatican happens to be situated near Rome. If the Vatican were a hundred miles away instead of being just across the Tiber, you would hear nothing about Rome being declared an open city. The Italian government says the war must go on—but nobody must touch Rome, the seat of the government.

In total war there can be no such thing as an open city.

You can spare a hospital. But you cannot spare a whole city, especially the capital and chief commercial and transportation center of the enemy. We have said we would consider Rome an open city and withhold further bombing only if the government evacuated the place completely, only if all war industry in the city were closed down, and only if all military transportation through Rome were suspended. Our terms are equivalent to the Italians abandoning Rome.

• • •

What the Italians are trying to do is obvious. They are trying to ease out of the war by the side door, through the Vatican door, without paying the price of surrender. They would like to drop out of the war completely, returning to the position of a neutral. That would be a favorable move for Germany because it would prevent our using territory in Italy as a springboard for bombing of Germany. We have refused to consider any such neutralization of Italy. The next best move for Italy is the one that would spare Rome by giving it immunity as an open city.

As we press our victories, new military advantages open up to us. Each time we advance, we move our fighter and bomber bases further up. Allied military officers are insistent that we agree to nothing that would restrict us in availing ourselves of these new opportunities. Italian tactics since the ousting of Mussolini have all been in the direction of trying to block us by diplomatic maneuvers. Nothing the Badoglio government has proposed indicates any real desire to swing to our side. On the contrary everything has been pointed toward continuing to help the Axis.

• • •

We have avoided bombing Italian cities that have no military importance, such as Florence. In the two raids on Rome extreme care has been taken to avoid damage to churches and other religious institutions. The Vatican is far enough away from military targets in Rome to be out of danger. It is as safe as Washington cathedral would be from a bomber over the railroad station here, which is on the other side of town.

One would think the church would deeply resent this brazen way in which the Badoglio government is hiding behind the Vatican, trying to use it as a screen from behind which it could continue more safely to wage the war for the Axis.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Because I fear that in my detestation of all communists and all things communist I have unintentionally wronged good men in the merchant marine, many of whom unavoidably find themselves members of communist party-line organization, the National Maritime Union, I am publishing today a letter from a sailor in the merchant service officers' school at Fort Turnbull, New London, Conn., which clarifies many matters.

Pegler

"As to your slant on things in general," he says, "I agree with you. However, in your attacks on the communist element in the NMU you are being most unjust to the merchant service as a whole. There no doubt is a definite communist element in the NMU and many of its policies probably have followed the party line, but I am convinced this element is a small minority. The great majority joined for their own protection against conditions that existed for years before the union was formed and the series of strikes for betterment of conditions and pay commenced.

"As far as the Pilot (official party-line journal of the union) is concerned, it is misleading to judge the mass of men by what you read in it. The Pilot is necessary to keep an interest in the union. It may stress the fight against fascism more than it does the battle to save America but most members joined to prevent the return of conditions that formerly prevailed. The policies of the Pilot do not necessarily reflect the sentiments of the merchant seamen as a whole. I have found this to be true.

"As far as those fabulous wages are concerned, they no longer exist. Most of the 'port bonuses' have been done away with. These bonuses were started to compensate men going into war zones before Pearl Harbor. The men, it is true, do make more money than soldiers and (navy) sailors. So do miners, aircraft workers and most everyone else. The Merchant Marine is not a branch of the armed forces. Most men in it are following their regular profession. Meanwhile, they are not eligible for the same high insurance members of the armed forces are, permanent disability allowance, postwar bonuses, reduced postwar taxation, preferred civil service status, etc. (Note: President Roosevelt did, however, include the merchant sailors in some of his recent recommendations for postwar recognition, rehabilitation and benefits.)

"And many of the men have long since retired from the sea and have now left comfortable shoreside jobs and families to go to sea again for purely patriotic reasons. A seaman's pay may seem fabulous as compared with soldiers and sailors pay, but so is every defense worker's. He is the backbone of our overseas war effort and after the war will continue to be the backbone of a new and better merchant marine.

"A seaman's life is no bed of roses in peace or war and I see no reason why his pay should, in war time, be reduced to that of a soldier or navy sailor. This reasoning, carried to its logical and just end would require the whole country to be placed on a $50-a-month basis.

"I personally have not been at sea since 1933. Since then, up to last year I lived in the Far East. I returned from China shortly after Pearl Harbor and was engaged by a branch of the armed forces for a mission in the Far East. Due to various questions of policy and politics this mission was stalled and delayed. I found it difficult to keep my self-respect and stay in Washington so I have returned to seafaring, which I followed from 1929 to 1933. After the war, I may continue in a new and better merchant marine.

"My observation as to the general trend of thinking among seamen is based on rubbing elbows with 2000 of them in this school. At least 14 months' active sea duty is required to be eligible for officer's training and about 80 per cent are fresh from the sea. The course is four months. After graduation and passing the steamboat inspector's exams, we are given 24 hours to report to New York and be assigned a ship.

"I have passed your articles around and the remarks are not complimentary. Men who have seen their comrades die in open boats, blasted by shell fire, trapped in steamfilled rooms and hobbie around on crutches with feet amputated from frost bite do not like to read derogatory articles about the profession. I believe it is very unbecoming of a man who is not obliged to face such dangers to write such articles. Trusting you will continue to attack where evil exists but also give credit where credit is due, I am yours truly."

In presenting this letter in full I trust the author agrees that if the merchant marine is to be an asset to this country after the war it will be necessary to break the power of those union officials representing minority rule, who fought every measure of American preparation for war until Hitler attacked Russia and who will turn against the United States again if Russia's course and ours ever cease to run together.

SEES CONGRESS APPROVAL FOR 'CO-OPERATION'

Burton Predicts Adoption of International Policy When Solons Reconvene.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Harold Burton (R., Ohio), co-author of the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution for a post-war international police force, today predicted that congress will go on record for international cooperation early next fall.

Burton, who returned from a speaking tour with Rep. Robert Ramspeck (D.-Ga.) in behalf of the resolution, said "The people want to do something different after this war."

"The people with whom he talked demonstrated a deep interest not only in winning the war but in making sure that we have a lasting peace," said Burton. "They believe that our internal recovery after the war depends in part upon continued peace and world stability.

"There is a clear realization that the United Nations are winning the war and that we want to keep them on the same side in peace."

Burton said that the people generally approved a bi-partisan approach to the foreign policy question.

"I think the senate will do something," he said. "I expect the house to pass the Fulbright resolution, and this will confront the senate."

The Fulbright resolution, couched in general terms, calls for post-war international cooperation.

Rep. Ramspeck, who collaborated with Burton on the speaking tour, also declared that people want the foreign policy problem settled on a non-partisan basis.

Republican National Chairman Harrison Spangler, after a conference with Burton, reiterated to newspaper men his belief that the Republican post-war committee will adopt a resolution for international cooperation at its forthcoming Mackinac City, Mich., conference.

"I don't think we are going abroad spending all the blood and treasure in this war and then leave it alone," he said.

Declaring that "we have always believed that politics stops at the water's edge," Spangler declared that the Republicans will approach the foreign policy issue on a non-partisan basis.

RELEASE BIRDS

Sportsmen Free 220 Pheasants For Hunters This Fall.

The Richland County Fish and Game Protective association had good news today for hunters who won't be able to make their usual pheasant hunting jaunts next fall.

Association members and Game Protector C. I. Kimmel yesterday released 220 young pheasants in four county areas in an attempt to build up the supply of birds at home.

Some of the birds were freed south of Ontario, others near Shelby and north of Mansfield, and a small group near Lucas, said Gordon Ensminger, chairman of the county sportsmen's group.

The pheasants, eight weeks old, were brought here from the state conservation division's farm at Urbana. Helping Kimmel and Ensminger release them were Gus Miller, chairman of the pheasant committee of the county fish and game association; County Commissioner Guy Stewart, and John Swisher.

ASKS U. S. FOR NYA EQUIPMENT

Mansfield Schools Seeking Possession of Furnishings at Abandoned Camp.

Mansfield schools will ask the federal government for shop equipment and other supplies valued at approximately $18,000 from the abandoned National Youth administration training center at Charles Mill lake, it was revealed at last night's meeting of the board of education.

The schools stand a good chance to receive the materials, Supt. W. L. Miller said, since the board of education which was sponsoring training classes at the center at the time the camp was closed has priority on the equipment it requests.

The board last night authorized Supt. Miller to file requests for all the auto shop equipment in the training center garage, part of the machine shop and sheet metal equipment, all the materials in the radio-electric shop, and a quantity of groceries, restaurant supplies, and office equipment.

Should the schools receive the shop, office, and restaurant equipment, it would be loaned for the duration of the war and six months. Food and other materials that cannot be saved would be granted as gifts to the schools.

The NYA center was closed more than a month ago when congress left the NYA without funds to carry on its work. At the time the center was abandoned it was being used to train young women for war jobs.

Mr. Roser, a native of Pennsylvania, spent the greater part of his life in Mansfield, moving to Detroit three months ago.

REACHES LONDON

LONDON — (AP) — Maj. Gen. George Head, chief of the United States army air transport command, has arrived in London, it was announced today.

Mansfielders are finding the job a little tedious, but they are harvesting a big crop of elderberries this summer to help build their food supply for the coming winter. Literally scores of city residents are wearing purple stains on their fingers from picking the little berries in thickets along county roads. The crop is reported one of the heaviest in years and it's helping to make up for the shortage of apples and peaches. Besides, the berries usually don't cost anything.

A former Mansfield girl has been chosen as Miss New York to compete for the Miss America title next month at Atlantic City. She is Miss Milena Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Miller, 551 Marion avenue. Miss Miller is a model in New York City and is residing in Manhattan. Her picture appears in yesterday's issue of PM, New York newspaper.

The Mansfield Boy Scout farm labor program must be judged a success, according to statistics furnished by Scout Executive Floyd Dent, the man behind the program. The program was established this summer at Camp Avery Hand, jr. with the intention of assisting farmers with their work. Dent said 53 boys participated. These boys shocked 210 acres of grain and spent a total of 278 hours helping thresh. Besides that, they helped pick more than 400 bushels of apples and cultivated their own victory garden.

When he found that his family was moving out of town, a ten-year-old member of the Older Children's reading club at the public library was afraid that he wouldn't finish reading the last book that would enable him to receive his book certificate for the summer before the family leaves Thursday. However, last night the lad appeared at the library with the report for the book. Miss Myra Lorimer, children's librarian, is making sure that he gets the certificate before the family leaves tomorrow.

Ohio 'Angel Face' Finds Her Luck's Bad In New York

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mrs. Marjorie Long Katenkamp, 29, of Chillicothe, O., should have known better, but then, she was a stranger in town.

Known as "Angel Face," she admits to a 10-year criminal career, six arrests and a one to five year prison term in Cleveland. She told general sessions Judge George L. Donnellan yesterday that she came here because she heard that picking pockets in New York was a cinch.

In R. H. Macy's department store she slipped her deft hand into the purses of six women, police said, but made the mistake of selecting a store detective as one of her intended victims.

Judge Donnellan sentenced her to three months in the workhouse on her plea of guilty to petit larceny.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Even Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox is confused over the many announcements on the drafting of fathers, he admitted today.

Knox was asked at his news conference if the navy contemplated drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers in the efforts to increase the size of the navy.

"There have been a lot of announcements that have me confused," Knox replied.

Then, he added: "The draft is out of my bailiwick."

2,000 WORKERS IN 4 OHIO WAR FACTORIES IDLE

Labor Tie-Ups Halt Output of Weapons In Barberton, Cleveland, Akron.

(By Associated Press)

Production of war materials was slowed in at least four northeastern Ohio plants today as an estimated 2,000 workers were reported idle in separate disputes.

Approximately 800 CIO steelworkers left their jobs at the American Steel and Wire company's Cuyahoga works in Cleveland last night, the company reported, in a dispute on overtime pay.

At Akron, the Goodyear Aircraft Corp. reported 600 workers engaged in a walkout precipitated by a dispute over piecework rates.

Other stoppages were at the Barberton, O., plant of the Columbia Chemical division of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., and at the Aluminum Co. of America's Cleveland Magnesium plant.

The American Steel and Wire company, a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corp., reported no grievance was presented by the unionists but "apparently the premium pay question brought on the strike." A union representative said the union was demanding time and a half for Saturday work regardless of hours worked previously.

Officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers' union made no comment on the Goodyear walkout, but both company and union representatives said the dispute involved piecework rates for the Wheel and Brake division.

About 200 members of the United Chemical Workers' union, affiliated with District 50, United Mine Workers of America, were reported idle at the Barberton Chemical plant. Forest Malone, union financial secretary, said about 30 riggers left their jobs in a dispute over a war bond check-off program, and were joined by other workers throughout last night.

Twenty coremakers of the Aluminum Company of America Magnesium plant in Cleveland, were ordered by their union president to end a strike which made approximately 350 others idle for lack of material.

Edward Radden, president of the CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' local union, and a company representative attributed the walkout to a time study dispute and the question of bonuses.

Charging six errors in the conduct of the Weekley-Reed slander suit trial, attorneys for Dr. John A. Reed, the defendant, yesterday filed a motion for a new trial.

In the motion, the attorneys charged errors in admission of testimony offered by the plaintiff over objection of the defendant, error in rejection of testimony of the defendant, error in presentation of written reports to the jury before the arguments, error in the court's charge to the jury, misconduct on part of jurors in failing to disclose in their examination interest in or knowledge of facts in the case and other errors in the record as their cause of action.

Willard S. Weekley, the plaintiff and former superintendent of Butler schools, was awarded $500 by a jury of five men and seven women. Trial of the $10,000 slander suit opened Monday and closed Friday after nearly 45 witnesses had taken the stand to testify.

YANKS CAPTURE MESSINA, ENEMY FLEES SICILY

Naples, another close to the mouth of the Tiber, and a fourth near Imperia on the west side of the Gulf of Genoa.

The Americans pressed into Messina from the north coast, writing a virtual finish to the 38-day campaign launched on July 9-10 by the biggest amphibious invasion in history.

The Germans made a brief stand at Spadafora San Martino, on the coast less than eight miles from Messina, but the doughboys crashed through in a spectacular last dash.

From then on it was a bloodless scramble to reach the battered goal.

As they were reaching the outskirts, General Eisenhower was addressing a group of WACs at Allied headquarters and telling them, "Messina will fall tonight or tomorrow."

An almost complete eclipse of the moon early Sunday night gave the enemy unusual opportunity to escape.

With American forces in Messina the last avenue of escape was closed for the Axis forces still attempting to resist the advance of the British troops farther south.

How many Axis troops remained in the trap was not immediately clear. For several days, however, the Germans have been moving men and equipment across the narrow strait of Messina to the Italian mainland in an attempt to salvage something from the debacle, which equalled the smashing defeat suffered by their crack Africa corps in Tunisia.

A path for the American advance elements which penetrated into Messina was blasted by heavy artillery, which opened up a bombardment of the city at 3 a. m today.

Little resistance apparently was encountered by the American forces, which swept past minefields and obstacles left by Nazi engineers in an effort to slow their advance.

The Germans were reported still using some mobile artillery, however, in a final desperate attempt to stem the Allied onrush and a communique from Allied headquarters said they had launched an unsuccessful counter-attack against the Eighth army at one point yesterday.

Mopping up operations in the Messina region were reported progressing and complete capture of the city was regarded as imminent.

Virtually all of Sicily now is in the hands of the Allied armies, which launched their invasion of the island on July 10, when an initial attacking force of 160,000 American, British and Canadian troops was landed on the southern beaches to meet enemy forces at least a third larger numerically.

The Axis forces still remaining in Sicily were being subjected to pitiless assaults from the air and their plight obviously was hopeless.

Sicily's Entering Wedge for Invasion.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — (AP) — The wedge-shaped island of Sicily is the entering wedge driven into the fortress of Europe.

Tactically, the Mediterranean doors are wide open now

With the complete occupation of Sicily, the Allies possess a big advance base from which they can hop over into the Italian mainland, nip off Sardinia and Corsica or immobilize southern Italy while Greece is retaken.

The possibilities for the next move are virtually unlimited.

The Sicilian harbors of Palermo, Catania, Augusta and Syracuse are fully capable of accommodating the huge fleet necessary for another operation.

But that's one advantage in having Sicily—an accumulation of Allied shipping there wouldn't necessarily mean the main thrust was coming from there.

It might disguise an expedition moving out from Tunisia toward Corsica, Sardinia or even southern France. Or it might mask one assembling in the Middle East and aimed at the Balkans. Our possession of Sicily automatically redoubles the Axis problem of knowing where to commit their main forces on the shores of the Mediterranean.

Britain Clears All Civilians From Coast.

LONDON —(AP)— Great Britain began clearing all non-residents from her barricaded coastal areas today as a conviction gripped the nation that the hour is near for a powerful new blow at Adolf Hitler's European fortress.

Invasion talk was heard everywhere amid cries in both Britain and Russia for speedy opening of a second front.

From every new angle moves appeared directed at invasion, but whether in the Mediterranean, the Balkans or across the English channel was the Allied war chief's secret.

Significant, however, were these developments:

1 Heavy and repeated American air raids on Axis airfields in France—natural targets as a prelude to any new offensive.

2 Declaration of a state of siege in Norway by apparently jittery German occupation authorities.

3 Virtual isolation of Italy by severance of that country's telephone and telegraphic communications with Switzerland, giving rise to the belief that important developments might be in the offing.

(Dispatches from the Swiss border town of Chiasso quoted the Swiss telegraphic agency as saying that the situation throughout Italy remained grave with possibility of radical changes from one moment to the next.")

As the Allies' great aerial offensive roared on, every available plane based in Britain was reported being thrown into the fight—a further indication that an all-out drive might be imminent.

Armed guards and barricades blocked all approaches to certain towns on the British south coast, which was under the biggest ban since the outbreak of the war. But the feeling of nervous expectancy this time was far different than in 1940 after Dunkerque, when a German invasion was expected momentarily.

Lost Dads, See New Wasp Dip

They lost their fathers when the aircraft carrier Wasp went down during action in the Solomons but Jackie Shea, center, son of the gallant commander of the Wasp, and Jimmy and Bobby Burlingame, sons of an East Alton, Ill., seaman who went down with the ship, will forget their family tragedies to cheer when the new Wasp slides down the ways at Quincy, Mass., Tuesday, August 17. It was to Jackie that Commander Shea wrote that memorable last letter which Jackie is reading to Bobby, left, and Jimmy, right. The Burlingame boys wrote to President Roosevelt for permission to witness the launching of the new aircraft carrier.

QUEBEC PARLEY AWAITING FDR

War Conference of Military Leaders Goes on, Aimed at Shattering Axis Nerves.

Roosevelt had held a preliminary conference at the president's home at Hyde Park, N. Y., and that American chiefs of staff were here to confer with British staff chiefs.

Censorship restrictions on movements of the chief executive were lifted to permit advance disclosure that he was coming here for the war parleys. This was the first time since the United States went to war that such liberty had been allowed the press.

The policy apparently has been one of encouraging all sorts of speculation on what was going on in this ancient provincial capital and on what was likely to occur.

For the United States, Britain and Canada, there are few spots remaining for attacks except against the European continent itself. They could go into Sardinia or Corsica, but it is considered more likely here that assaults would be directed across the English Channel, at Norway or the lowlands, or at Italy.

Through blows at any or all of those areas, the United Nations could take full advantage of Russia's mighty drives on her central front. And if that full advantage is to be attained, strategy considerations would seem to dictate that the operations be undertaken in the relatively near future.

All factors point toward the idea that Allied plans for new onslaughts already have been drawn since months of preparation are required to get supplies and equipment and men to the jumping off places.

The conference here, then, would appear to be concerned with rechecking those plans and making any needed alterations in the light of the swift pace the United Nations armies have set in Russia and the Mediterranean since Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill met last in Washington in May.

BYRNES WARNS OF JOB AHEAD

strategy talks with Prime Minister Churchill.

Mr. Roosevelt said later information on the long-range bombing of the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania "leads us to believe that the damage to the refineries was greater than we had anticipated and that a large number of them have been put out of commission."

"This attack," he said in reply to a congratulatory message from the king, "seems to have been well worth while."

Byrnes, warning that there is "nothing to justify the hope of unconditional surrender by the Axis powers in the near future," said he had been authorized by the president to say "that in his judgment as of today the major battles lie ahead of us, not behind us."

Byrnes declared that in the land fighting in Africa and Sicily "we have met and defeated less than .7 per cent of the combat divisions which the enemy has in the European area.'

"If Italy is knocked completely out of the war and her army surrendered, the enemy will still have more combat divisions in Europe than will the Allies, and will have as many divisions as the Allies will have even after the American mobilization is complete with its full strength of over 90 divisions."

"Only in the air," he said in measured tones, "will we have numerical superiority."

"The roads to Berlin and Tokyo," he declared, "are still long, hard and bloody."

Of the home front, Byrnes said:

It is hoped, without lessening the war effort, to increase some essential supplies for civilians.

Regimentation of civilian life in total war is as necessary as military discipline is on the battlefield.

Definite progress is being made toward achieving a substantial reduction in the cost of actual necessities—"not of fancied wants."

Wages as well as prices must be held down.

Because of a threatened coal shortage, an eight-hour day, 48-hour week has been authorized for some mines now working a seven-hour day.

Excess purchasing power must be drained off by taxation or enforced savings.

Political discussions should be adjourned until the 1944 presidential campaign.

ONE DEAD, THREE HURT IN CRASH

EATON, O.—(INS)—One man was dead and three others suffered injuries today as a result of a collision of trucks at an intersection near Eaton.

William H. Bowman, 55, of Farmersville, was killed when he was thrown through the windshield of a truck driven by Walter Gephart, 36, Germantown, who suffered arm and rib fractures. His brother, Erwin Gephart, 26, was cut in the accident.

The driver of the other truck, Harry Weaver, 32, of Miamisburg, was also hurt. Sheriff's deputies reported that they were informed that neither driver stopped at the intersection.

Russians Speed Up Drive On Bryansk.

MOSCOW—(AP)—The drive on Bryansk, the hinge of the German front southwest of Moscow, is moving at the fastest pace of any of the three current Red army thrusts, the Russian army newspaper Red Star indicated today.

With Soviet troops meeting stiff resistance in the battle for Kharkov, other Russian divisions were moving steadily ahead toward Bryansk supported by the push further north from Spas Demensk.

Around Kharkov, Red Star said, the Germans were hurling large concentrations of reserves backed up by units of from 40 to 50 tanks and air squadrons in an effort to improve their precarious position.

The Germans were meeting with little success in the counter thrusts despite the use of picked troops, Red Star said, and the Soviet army was throwing the Nazis back and inflicting heavy losses.

The Russian troops driving through the shattered German defenses west of Karachev have approached to within 15 miles of the important Nazi base at Bryansk, Moscow announced in a communique last night.

sey's headquarters in the South Pacific estimated possibly 8,000 Japanese on heavily-reinforced Kolombangara had been cut off from supply bases by the invasion of Vella Lavella. He thought it probable that the island would be used to spearhead thrusts on Japanese held Bougainville.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted without confirmation that Japanese naval air units sank four large American transports, two cruisers, a destroyer and a landing boat off the island and shot down 28 planes.

On the New Guinea front, MacArthur's headquarters announced, Australian jungle fighters wiped out Japanese forces at Tambu bay, only six miles south of the enemy air base at Salamaua, killing at least 200 Japanese.

U. S. fighter planes intercepted a force of 25 Japanese dive bombers over the New Guinea battle area and shot down at least 12 at a cost of only one plane, while long-range U. S. Liberators again flew 2,500 miles round trip to blast the enemy oil port of Balikpapan in Borneo.

Island Falls to Yanks Without a Shot.

By LEIF ERICKSON

WITH U. S. AMPHIBIOUS INVASION FORCES ON VELLA LAVELLA, Aug. 15.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Without firing a shot but ready for a fight, veteran United States jungle troops landed today on Vella Lavella island, establishing a major beachhead only 70 miles from Kahilia, the enemy's key Solomons air base on the southern tip of Bougainville.

Zero-escorted dive bombers of the enemy came down from Kahili to attack the invasion convoy only after the first of the amphibious sections had unloaded army shock troops, their ammunition and rations on a beach and was under full speed home. None of the ships was hit by bombs in this first early morning raid, nor in two later attacks. But the last ships unloading were strafed in the enemy's final air thrust of the day.

Where our troops landed are a few thatched huts on the southeast coast of Vella Lavella, 16 miles across the Vella gulf from Kolombangara.

100 U. S. Planes In Air At Once Smash Japs.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE SOLOMON ISLANDS AIR COMMAND, Aug 15—(Delayed)—(AP)—Demonstrating America's growing air might in the Solomons, as many as 100 fighter planes were aloft at one time today as victory after victory was piled up in dogfights with the Japanese.

Three fights ranged from Japanese-held Kahili airfield on Bougainville, south across Vella Lavella, to New Georgia and Rendova. During them the enemy lost a total of 34 planes. Only two of our planes were lost and their pilots were believed saved.

Japanese plane losses in the Solomons since February are estimated unofficially to approximate 1,000.

By postponing mid-summer trips you help Greyhound do a bigger war job

If it isn't essential that you take your trip immediately, put it off until after Labor Day — and buy War Savings Bonds now! You'll find it more convenient traveling after the mid-summer rush — you'll be saving much-needed space for fighters, war workers, others who must travel now — and you'll help Greyhound do a better job of moving vital manpower.

More Convenience After Labor Day

There'll be more room on the buses in September and October—less crowding and inconvenience. That will be particularly true if you choose mid-week days to travel — Tuesdays, Wednesdays or Thursdays. And whenever you go, make it a point to travel light (one piece of luggage, preferably) and to get tickets and information well in advance.

Crouch leaving the building with two large suitcases.

Questioned by the officer, Crouch said he had clothing in the suitcases and was leaving for St. Louis. Palmer asked to see the "clothing" and found the traveling bags filled with liquor, he said.

Arraigned in municipal court today, Crouch pleaded innocent to both charges and was released under $1,000 bond for appearance Friday. Atty. George W. Biddle entered the plea for Crouch and asked for continuance.

Police said the liquor apparently had been smuggled into Mansfield from Missouri in a huge trunk which they found in Crouch's establishment. The trunk was heavily padded to protect the bottles, officers said.

Crouch has a long record of violations of federal and state laws. He once served two years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., for fraud and served a year in the Columbus workhouse after he was cited two years ago for staging an immoral show at Tillman's park, north of Mansfield.

Acting on the recommendation of the Mansfield Teachers' association and the Mansfield Federation of Teachers, the board voted to allow teachers and employes full pay for five days of sick leave during a year and set the pay for substitute teachers at $5 per day. The substitute pay has been $4 a day in the grade schools, $5 in junior high schools, and $6 in Senior high schools.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1943.

Nearly all western Europe wants to be conquered—by the right people.

It sometimes seems like an oversight not to make a hay fever victim responsible for enforcement of the law that requires weed-cutting.

Headline reads: "Government Employs One for Every Forty-five of Us"—although it sometimes seems there are 45 for every one of us.

War Still Far From Being Won

SUCCESSFUL conclusion of the six-weeks' campaign in Sicily, following the victorious Allied drive through North Africa, cannot fail to encourage United Nations' belief that the war against the Axis powers will eventually be won.

This is still dependent, however, on continuance of strong Russian offensive on the eastern front and unremitting aggressive action against Germany and Italy in Europe and against Japan in the Far East.

Prime Minister Churchill, now in Quebec, has made vigorous denial of a report that he had predicted end of the war with Germany within six months, and in a talk last night James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization, announced President Roosevelt had authorized him to say that, "In his judgment as of today, the major battles lie ahead of us, not behind us."

Any fair estimate of the present situation, based on study of the extent of Axis occupation of Europe and the spread of Japanese control in the southwest Pacific, must lead to a similar conclusion, and warning against over-confidence would seem unnecessary under the circumstances.

"There is nothing to justify the hope of unconditional surrender by the Axis powers in the near future," said Mr. Byrnes. "It is by no means clear that we are as near winning the war as the Axis was in the summer of 1940."

The implication is clear—America has not yet reached the point of "all out" war effort, and this must unquestionably be done before complete victory can be achieved.

Keep Gas Distribution Impartial

ADVANCE announcement of intention to cut the weekly gasoline allowance of A book holders from four gallons to three gallons brought the customary public reaction and resulted in doubling week-end sales in affected states.

Such an attitude on the part of motorists must be attributed to widespread belief that there was no justification for this added restriction and that the gasoline thus saved is not actually needed for war purposes.

This view is also held by Representative Edward Rowe, (R), Fourteenth Ohio district, who yesterday expressed belief that the reduction is unnecessary, that it will not help motorists in the east and will cause great hardships in the midwest.

So-called "pleasure driving" will be practically eliminated under the three-gallon a week allowance and motorists who are not asking favors for themselves will be justified in feeling that no partiality should be shown to other drivers and that allowances of extra gasoline should hereafter be based entirely on legitimate needs rather than made available because of political "pull," personal friendship, questionable "doctor's certificate," or any other chiseling device.

Inconveniences necessitated by rationing, either of gasoline or other commodities, should apply equally to all. It is when a motorist knows, or has reason to think, that somebody else is getting more than his share, that he rightfully makes vociferous protest.

Too Serious for Whitewash Tactics

GOVERNOR BRICKER last week dismissed charges that the state highway department's Cleveland organization had been turned into a political machine, with the statement, "there is no evidence whatsoever" to support the charges.

But almost immediately 35 employes and officials of the state highway department in Cleveland resigned as Republican ward leaders and precinct committeemen, in an apparent effort to save their jobs and head off possible prosecution for illegal political activity.

It is gratifying to learn that Judge Thomas Powers, of Akron, in his capacity as president of the Ohio Civil Service Council, and Frank T. Cullitan, prosecuting attorney of Cuyahoga county, will make independent efforts to learn the truth concerning alleged irregularities.

While the charges were made by the Cleveland Press, the governor's assertion moved Ralph Kelly, columnist in the Sunday Plain Dealer to refer to it as "funniest public statement issued in a long time."

The Press minced no words in claiming that the regional office was operated as a political adjunct to the office of Congressman Bender, Cleveland Republican boss.

And the Plain Dealer columnist says there is "little doubt" that it has been operated that way since 1938, with the knowledge and presumably the consent of Columbus.

The people of Ohio, who pay the highway department employes, have a right to know all the facts, without benefit of whitewash.

Another Ruling On Shoe Coupons

ONE of the unexplained mysteries of rationing, under OPA regulations, is that you CAN use a loose coupon for mail order purchase of shoes but CANNOT use a loose coupon when purchasing a pair of shoes at a store.

Intent of the shoe-purchasing restriction, of course, is to confine the use of coupons to members of the family to which ration books are issued, but how a loose coupon sent through the mail is more readily identifiable as bona fide than one handed over the store counter is not made clear.

Most recent ruling, announced yesterday, seems designed to hit cases in which out-of-town shoppers neglect to bring along their ration book when intending to buy shoes, making their selection at the store, then mailing the coupon and having the shoes sent to them, so as to avoid another trip.

It sometimes seems that the OPA fairly outdoes itself in muddling everything with which it comes in contact. Variation in permitted use of shoe coupons is no more than another example of ineptitude.

Readjustment of paratroopers to postwar conditions is anticipated as quite a problem—unless facilities are provided for at least an occasional jump.

It sometimes seems that the excellence of John Nance Garner as a vice president was never fully appreciated.

HUNTING THE RUSSIAN BEAR

Weather Will Become a Factor In Determining Invasion Course

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

WHILE Messrs Roosevelt and Churchill will go into conference at Quebec surrounded by an atmosphere of general success, there's a tricky military problem which may give some trouble, and that's one of time—whether there is still enough good fighting weather left this season to enable the Allies to take full advantage of Hitler's unhappy position, especially on the Russian front.

In short the question is whether we are going to be able to get at the fuehrer with both fists while he is showing signs of being hurt or whether the bell at the end of this round will give him a breathing spell. Another six or eight weeks will see the weather in the European theaters going sour. Fighting will still continue, of course, but it will be greatly impeded. This will be particularly true of the air forces, which will face days on end when little or nothing can be done.

DEWITT MACKENZIE

What the parley at Quebec will have to figure out is where the western Allies can best strike in the remaining good weather so as to assist the great Red drive.

The Russians of course want a land front opened up in France, and the western Allies also want to get at that as soon as possible. That's the operation which would do Hitler the most harm right now. But is it feasible?

An invasion of France is a tremendous operation from every viewpoint. It will require a vast assemblage of fighting men, warships and transports, air fleets, and equipment of all sorts.

Obviously it takes time to assemble the wherewithal for such an undertaking, and the Mediterranean operations have been employing much equipment, and perhaps troops, which would be needed in England for an invasion across the channel.

The Anglo-American Allies not only have great armies in the Mediterranean theater, but at the time we invaded Sicily we employed a fleet of more than 3,000 craft of all categories.

It takes time to move such an outfit. Unless some of it already has been shifted, in anticipation of the speedy conclusion of the Sicilian campaign, there certainly isn't much time left before the autumn weather sets in.

* * *

THIS naturally gives rise to speculation as to whether it will be possible to undertake the long debated invasion of France this year—a measure which ultimately will have to be carried out in order to beat Hitler, unless there's a collapse of morale in the Reich.

In view of all the circumstances it may be that the Allied high command will feel that further operations in the Mediterranean theater and Balkans are the more reasonable choice.

Still, it strikes me that there's no reason as yet to abandon hope that the western Allies can stage an invasion of France this season, and perhaps carry out other measures in the Mediterranean at the same time.

We are piling up striking power in all theaters fast and it may be that a realignment of the invasion forces and equipment could be carried out with sufficient speed to just about get under the wire.

A good many military experts figure this may happen, although they quite recognize that an invasion across the English Channel will call for last work.

Timely Editorial

Some Pay; Some Don't.

If there has been a single prosecution in this area for failure to display a federal use tax stamp on a motor vehicle, we have failed to hear of it.

But we have noticed that a good many cars still don't seem to have a stamp in sight.

To some persons it may seem petty to urge that stern measures be taken with motorists who have failed to pay a $5 tax. Yet in all fairness to those conscientious citizens who have put their five-spots on the line, it seems to us that the government has an obligation to make sure that the tax is paid by everyone.

We haven't any objection to being taxed. The government needs the money. But the least the government can do is make sure that everyone is treated alike—that evasion is not allowed to be safe and profitable.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Find New Synthetic Tires Won't Stand High Speeds, Rough Roads

WASHINGTON—When you get your new set of synthetic tires, don't expect to go tearing down the road at sixty miles an hour. The sad news is that passenger tires made of synthetic rubber will not be strong enough to endure high speeds or rough roads.

Present plans call for production of passenger tires from synthetic rubber without an admixture of natural rubber, except for a mere five ounces required to cement the plies together. This will mean an indefinite continuation of the 35 miles-an-hour speed limit, and it will also mean that you can't drive with absolute safety on rocky country roads, or over any very rough surfaces.

A jagged stone or rock will readily rip a synthetic tire, and the break tends to "run" or become larger without further abuse.

In short, synthetic rubber will be conspicuous for its quantity more than its quality. It will not serve for heavy duty of any kind, either civilian or military.

The Germans have recognized the weakness of synthetic, and have mixed 40 per cent natural rubber with 60 per cent synthetic in the manufacture of heavy duty tires. Sometimes they rely on natural rubber 100 per cent. Tires received here from captured Nazi aircraft reveal that they contain no synthetic.

(The Germans have continued to receive natural rubber until early this year, via French ships which brought the rubber from Japanese-held East Indies. In 1942, they received 50,000 tons. This commerce has been cut off, however, by the North African campaign and the end of French overseas collaboration with Germany).

In the early hopeful days, U. S. experts planned to mix only 5 per cent natural rubber with 95 per cent synthetic for trucks and combat tires. But this was found to be too weak, and the mixture was changed to 10 per cent natural and 90 per cent synthetic. Even then, the tire was too weak, and it was changed twice more—to 20 and 80; then to 30 and 70.

This will probably be the final recipe for combat tires—30 per cent natural rubber and 70 per cent synthetic. Though this formula uses more synthetic than the Germans use, U. S. experts declare they now know more than the Germans and can produce better stuff.

However, civilian passenger tires, unlike combat tires, will carry almost no natural rubber, except for trucks.

Victor Mature.

COAST GUARD officials shake their heads in wonderment and admit that a matinee idol from Hollywood is really doing a valiant job as a bosun's mate on a coast guard cutter. The name is Victor Mature.

His ship operates in north Atlantic waters, and was active in the rescue of the two survivors from the Escanaba.

There is no hair gloss or fingernail polish on this man. He knows how to handle a ship's gear, and how to give orders and take them. But when the ship comes to New York, Mature lines up his shipmates, divides them into squads, and leads them, one squad at a time, uptown to meet movie actresses who might be in the city.

Mature's first act when he stepped aboard ship was what put him right with the crustier members of the crew. He stuck out his hand and said, "Just call me Mature!"

When Will War End?

BEST MINDS in Washington, combining appraisals of both military and political factors, are definitedly optimistic about an early ending of the war in Europe.

The big worry, however, is that the nation will be too over-confident. Over-confidence, coupled with decreased production and slowed-up military moves, can make the war string out for months. Already the slow-up in Sicily, as a result of determined Axis resistance and the few days breather given Badoglio, missed a psychological moment.

Military minds in Washington are not so optimistic. Their job is to reckon on the toughest possible resistance. Gen. Eisenhower, for instance, figured on 30,000 casualties in Sicily, got around 5,000.

But those whose job it is to gauge the steaming political cauldron of Europe are much more optimistic. They remember that 22 days before Germany sued for an armistice, in November, 1918, Field Marshal Haig told Lloyd George it would take well into another year to defeat Germany.

* * *

Resume of Opinions.

HERE is a brief summary of Washington's political observers:

1. The rumored reshuffling of the German high command is not important. So far as the German army is concerned, it will fight as hard, or harder, without Hitler.
2. But the collapse of Italy will be important. It will take 20 Italian divisions out of the Balkans, which the Germans must replace with their own men.
3. Most important of all, however, is the ceaseless pounding on Germany from the air. Britain was much nearer the end than anyone realized in the fall of 1940, and she was not pounded a fraction as hard as Germany.
4. The final factor in the collapse of Germany will be the break-down of the civilian front. When railroads, factories, workmen cease to function, the army will have to surrender. This was what finished the German army in 1918 and what will finish it—in the opinion of many shrewd observers—this winter.

Note: Until that time comes, however, here is sound advice from Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty given to Ike Marcosson in 1917: "Give up hoping that this can be a short war. Plan and provide for an ever receding duration of at least two years more. If we all do this, peace may one day surprise us."

Small Business Blow-Up.

THE government's program for the relief of small business is headed for trouble when congress reconvenes next month.

At secret sessions of the Senate Small Business committee, headed by Senator James Murray of Montana, small businessmen complained about their inability to get government loans for war contracts and sub-contracts, while billions of dollars of government money is being shelled out to big corporations.

The senate committee heard complaints about the tight-fisted loan policies of the Smaller War Plants Corporation which would make tight-fisted RFC Administrator Jesse Jones look like Santa Claus.

One example given the senate committee was that of the Riverside Boatyard Co. of Miami, which tried to get a loan of only $10,000 from the Smaller War Plants corporation to complete a war contract. After being turned down, the company got the $10,000 loan from a private bank within 24 hours.

As a result, Senator James Murray of Montana, chairman of the Senate Small Business committee, is planning some close scrutiny of the Smaller War Plants Corporation.

Shrapnel Fragments Play Odd Pranks; Description of Hill Fighting In Sicily.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Every day at the front produces its quota of freak wounds and hair-breadth escapes. Almost any wounded man has missed death only by a matter of inches. Sometimes a bullet can go clear through a man and not hurt him much, while at other times an infinitesmal fragment of a shell can pick out one tiny vital spot and kill him.

Bullets and fragments do crazy things. Our surgeons picked out more than 200 pieces of shrapnel from one fellow. There was hardly a square inch of him, from head to toe, that wasn't touched. Yet none of them made a vital hit, and the soldier will live.

I remember one soldier who had a hole in the front of his leg just below the hip. It was about the size of a half dollar. It didn't look bad at all, yet beneath that little wound the leg bone was shattered and arteries were severed, and the surgeons were working hard to get the arteries closed so he wouldn't bleed to death.

Another fellow I saw had caught a small shell fragment in the wrist. It had entered at a shallow angle and gone clear up the arm to the elbow, and remained buried there. The skin wasn't even broken at the elbow, but right over the spot where the fragment stopped was a blister as big as a pigeon egg. The blister had been generated by the terrific heat of that tiny piece of metal.

* * *

THAT'S one thing most people don't realize—that fragments from bursting shells are white hot. I remember an impressive example that happened on our ship during an air raid just before we left Africa.

A heavy bomb hit about 100 yards away. Among the many fragments that hit our ship was one about half as big as a tennis ball.

It first hit a bronze water pipe along the ship's rail, then tore through a steel bulkhead into the radio room, hit a sailor in the shoulder, turned at right angles and went through a radio set, and finally went through one more steel bulkhead before it stopped.

When we picked up the fragment it had a quarter-inch plate of solid bronze welded onto one side of it. The fragment's intense heat had simply welded on a sheet of bronze as it went through the waterpipe at the rail. It was welded as solidly as though it had been done on purpose.

Here in northern Sicily it is all hill fighting, as it was in northern Tunisia, only worse. Getting the wounded out is often a problem. We had one wounded man who had been lowered by ropes over a sheer 75-foot cliff. He said he wasn't so concerned about his wounds, but the thought that maybe the rope would break gave him the worst scare of his life.

* * *

GERMAN medical facilities are apparently as good as ours. Medical supply dumps that we captured show that they are well supplied with the finest stuff.

We know that their system for collecting their wounded and burying their dead is good, for it is only after the most sudden and rapid advances on our part that we find their dead unburied.

We have captured several big Italian medical dumps. Our doctors found our surgical instruments far superior to the Italians', but both the Germans and the Italians have bandages and compresses that are better than ours.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Wild Ducklings

TODAY I saw again the same wild duck that I observed fly from beneath a rooty bank of Honey Creek, when I passed by in June.

A giant elm stood tall above the stream. The constantly moving water had washed the sandy soil from its maze of roots, until the mighty tree leaned eastward and earth was rising on the western side. Just above the water, I noticed a tufted thatch of straw, that seemed to have lodged there when the creek was up after heavy rain.

The bit of drift was naturally and carelessly placed, but after I had noticed a duck fly out, squawking curiously, I became inquisitive. I waded into the stream and threaded my way toward the bunch of straw. I was sure I heard movements there, as I approached.

With my pen knife I cut away some stringy roots and made an opening for my shoulder, moving sideways. By ramming my head up among soft clinging earth, held by the roothairs, I could look down upon a neat, lined nest—alive with tiny ducklings.

But for their beaks, they looked like very active, downy chicks and I smiled as I admired how their plain wild mother had concealed them. Although I stood kneedeep in water, with my head jammed against a dripping sodded roof, I was reluctant to leave. Here was something new—yet every summer, through all the ages, it has occurred along each winding stream.

I did not tell of my find to anyone, for the children swim near there daily.

This evening I walked again by the little cove and stood behind the massive elm, admiring its trailing branches. I heard a slight ripple in the quiet water, and eastward from the tree was the same lady wild duck, going upstream near the place that was once her nest. Following after her, single file, I counted nine half-grown ducklings. They were like miniature images of their mother, and kept perfectly in line. They swam so close to me that I could notice the rhythmic, graceful motion of the nine pairs of tiny legs.

Up past the rooted tree I watched them go, in fine formation. Then suddenly the third from the rear dropped out and disappeared. It did not dive, but was drawn beneath, with only a slight flutter of the wings. The two trailing on behind, closed up the gap. Eight little ducks followed their mother, where nine had been before.

I wondered if the faithful mother would know the difference. I wondered if in her pretty head she might suspect that a snapping turtle lurked beneath the silent water.
